HEAVY LOSS IN N. E. BY FLOODS

Merrimack River at Lawrence Highest in 21 Years; Several Factories Closed

The Merrimack River today reached a height of 21.65 feet below the Lawrence dam, the highest point in twenty-one years, causing the closing down of many industrial plants and the flooding of many cellars.

The water was reported to be rising more than an inch an hour, and similar conditions were recorded on other rivers and streams of New England.

One bridge over the Connecticut at Brattleboro, Vt., has already been carried away by the freshets and structures over other rivers are staggering under the assaults of tons of ice and debris borne on the raging torrents.

The Merrimack was eight feet above normal at Haverhill, and it was stated that a heavy rain would paralyze all industries in the valley and force 20,000 persons out of work.

The Charles was three or four feet higher than the average, but the Kendrick bridge, temporarily closed March 26, was thrown open for traffic.

LAWSON HEARINGS PRIVATE

Master to Determine Temporary Custody of Twins and Amount of Alimony

Following a conference in Superior Court today with Attorneys Elbridge R. Anderson and Edward Carr, Judge Frederick Lawton referred to a master the question of the custody of the seven-year-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lawson, grandchildren of Thomas W. Lawson.

The parents were in court prepared to fight for the custody of the twins and their daughters, Vera, twelve, and Jean, ten.

To avoid publicity, however, the attorneys agreed, with consent of the judge, to refer the question of the custody of the twins, pending a decision in the parents' divorce proceedings, to a master. As the attorneys could not agree upon a person to act as master, Judge Lawton will appoint one. Hearings will be private. They will begin tomorrow at a place to be named by the master.

TO DETERMINE ALIMONY.

In addition to hearing evidence on the question of the twins' custody he will also hear testimony and determine how much alimony Mrs. Lawson shall have pending hearing of the divorce suits. The two eldest children, by agreement of counsel, are to remain in a boarding school they now attend.

"I am glad that the case is to be heard before a master," said Lieutenant Lawson, father of the children, "as I do not know of any good reason why all this filth should be printed."

OF OPPOSITE TYPES.

Lawrence's pretty, blue-eyed wife, smartly attired, paced the corridors outside the courtroom during the proceedings within. She was there under summons of Mr. Lawson's attorney to testify regarding what she knows of the relations of her husband and Mrs. Lawson, both of whom lived at the same fashionable boarding house. Mrs. Lawson was in the courtroom part of the time and at other times walked about the corridors within a few feet of the woman whose husband she is alleged to have been unduly familiar with.

Neither woman glanced at the other. They are of opposite types. Mrs. Lawrence is a pronounced blonde with the bluest of blue eyes, while her alleged rival in the affections of her husband is a brunette with velvet brown eyes. Both are of about the same age and build.

1,000 Injured in Disaster

Chicago, March 29.—At least 159 persons are dead and 1,000 injured in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin and Georgia as the result of tornadoes which swept through those States.

Hour by hour the death list grows and when the full toll of the storms counted it is believed that it will bear the names of atleast 200 victims.

Two other States, Missouri and Alabama, felt the effects of the terrific storm, but so far as is known no deaths occurred in these States.

In Chicago and its suburbs there are thirtyone known dead 500 injured and 1,500 homeless. The hospitals are filled almost to overflowing, and martial law has been put in force in the districts hardest hit. The property loss in Illinois alone was estimated at $20,000,000.

The fact that the destruction was not more complete within the Chicago city limits was attributed to the warding off of the storm by Lake Michigan, which always has been regarded as an insurance against tornadoes here.

WILL REST AT WOODS HOLE

President and Wife to Make "Summer White House" on Estate of Charles R. Crane

Copyright, 1920, Washington Times.

Washington, March 29.—Woods Hole, a resort on an extremity of land in Buzzards Bay on the Massachusetts coast, will be the Summer White House this year.

This fact became known today when it was learned that President and Mrs. Wilson had accepted the offer of Charles R. Crane of Chicago, newly appointed minister to China, of the use of his estate during the latter part of June, July and August.

Plans for the shift to the Massachusetts resort and the temporary occupancy of the seashore home will be begun this week.

MAY SAIL ON MAYFLOWER.

The steady improvement in health of President Wilson during the past few weeks have made possible the journey to Woods Hole on the Presidential yacht Mayflower, which is now undergoing extensive repairs. This detail, however, is dependent on later conditions. In any event the Mayflower will go to Woods Hole, which has a good harbor.

Mr. Crane has made his plans to leave on his diplomatic post in China on April 29, and has arranged to give the President complete control of his Summer home, in order that the extraordinary preparations connected with moving may be made.

Dr. Cary T. Grayson, personal physician to the President; Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, together with the staff of executive officers will accompany President and Mrs. Wilson.

WILL KEEP "ON THE JOB."

A large force of secret service operatives will be on hand, as usual.

It may be said that there is no political significance attached to the decision of the President, as he has no intention of relaxing in any degree his keen interest in matters affecting either the Peace Treaty or the welfare of the Democratic Party. This is the best opinion of those in touch with the President.

The adjournment of Congress may delay the date of departure, as he intends to have his office business in satisfactory shape before leaving.

It is believed, however, that both senators and congressmen will not prefer warm Washington to their own homes.

The decision of the President to spend his vacation in a cool climate

TELL ALLEN OF STOCK LOSSES

Scores of Complaints in Response to Official's Plea for Information

Scores of letters from people all over New England, who claim to have lost money in silver stock ventures, were received by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen today in response to his appeal to the public for information relative to attempts at sale of doubtful securities.

The complaints come from people who have lost money in these transactions and from friends or representatives of others who have suffered in their speculations.

Although the attorney general's appeal was State-wide, and he is limited to the situation in Massachusetts, it was said that at least half the letters have been received from people in the other New England States and some have come from New York.

Reports that more warrant for the arrests of other stock brokers are being prepared by the attorney general were prevalent today.

While admitting that the letters have been received, Mr. Allen declined to affirm or deny the report that more warrants will be issued.

"This matter will be tried out in the courts," he said, "and until that time I will not discuss it, except that tomorrow afternoon I will tell the Committee on Rules why the bill to give the Attorney-General complete authority to investigate and prosecute the sale of doubtful securities should be enacted into law."

Attorney-General Allen is said to feel that his crusade has already accomplished two results. He believes it has stopped the advertising of those securities by the brokers in the newspapers which were publishing that class of advertising and that it has deterred the salesmen who were selling stock at the mill gates.

STORE MANAGER IS HELD UP

Three Bandits Lure Somerville Man to Back Room and Steal $321

Reuben Smith, manager of the S. E. Ames Butter and Tea Store at No. 12 Broadway, Somerville, was held up today by three armed men and robbed of $321 belonging to the company.

The men entered the store a few minutes after Smith had opened. One of the trio bought a half-dozen eggs, and in giving change Smith drew a large roll of bills from his pocket. Another of the men then asked for an empty packing case, and the manager led the men into a rear room.

One of the men drew a revolver as soon as they arrived in the back room, and then as Smith held his hands above his head the other two went through his pockets.

DEATH LIST FROM TORNADO GROWING HOURLY, MAY REACH 200

BUILDINGS IN PATH OF WIND ARE TORN TO PIECES

The suburban towns and cities near Chicago were the scenes of the greatest havoc. In some portions of these the "twister" cut a path nearly half a mile wide and several block long, bouncing back into the atmosphere after each visitation, to tip down later into some community farther eastward.

HOMES IN SPLINTERS.

Homes were ripped to splinters everywhere in its path as though they had been rent asunder by high explosive shells, their occupants pitched with the wreckage.

Churches, some of them with their congregations at prayer inside, were torn to pieces, with startling swiftness. Trees were uprooted, telegraph poles hurled through the air like toothpicks, and heavy objects like automobiles and boilers were thrown about by the wind with the ease that a child tosses its playthings about a nursery.

In some sections the path of the tornado left scenes in its wake comparable to the villages in war-stricken Flanders.

Elgin, about forty miles from Chicago was one of the greatest sufferers. There the storm killed eight persons and cut a path 1,000 yards wide through a big portion of the business and residence sections. In a flash the scene in the town was one of buildings collapsing and pitching themselves into the street with their roofs flying through the air.

DOCTORS RUSHED TO SCENE.

As the horror of the disaster grew, speedy relief measures were taken in Chicago's loop district, where the sun was shining brightly during most of the havoc wrought in other cities.

A force of nurses and physicians was rushed to the stricken areas, relief funds were started by the newspapers and several companies, aided by armed members of the American Legion, were dispatched to the storm-smashed districts.

The soldiers were given orders to shoot to kill all looters detected in the act of robbing stricken homes. Officials of the Red Cross in Chicago went to the devastated areas and made plans for speedy relief measures.

Melrose Park, just outside the city limits, was a greater sufferer in point of lives lost than was Elgin, though the property damage was not so great.

Three nine persons were killed and scores hurt. It was estimated that more than 1,000 were made homeless. Fire resulted from the storm havoc, but was placed under control before it had done great damage.

Nearly all of the dead there, as in the other communities hit, were crushed to death under the timbers of their own homes. Moans of the dying and injured spurred rescuers to frantic efforts to extricate them.

ENTIRE FAMILY KILLED.

After striking Melrose Park the tornado bounded over a large portion of northern Chicago and struck in the fashionable suburb, Evanston and Wilmette, reducing to wreckage scores of residences of the wealthy in the latter suburb, and demolishing twenty houses in the former.

In Addison Heights, another suburb, one family of five was reported killed when their home crashed down upon them while they were at dinner. Other suburbs where the cyclone took a toll of dead and injured and caused great damage were Dunnington, Irving Park, Norwood Park, Virgin, Maywood, Gladstone Park and Joliet.

The greatest damage in the Chicago city limits was in the southern part. By some freak, the storm broke before striking the city itself, one part of the twister going across the southern part of the city and the other to the north, the business section was untouched. Four persons were killed within the city limits and scores of homes destroyed.

FREAKISH STUNTS OF WIND.

The twister's visit was replete with freak happenings. Little Vincent Laufgenberger, 2½ years old, was blown from the sitting room of his home into the middle of the street and later picked up uninjured.

One man reported that he had been blown backward with his horses and wagon for a block, finally stopping in an ice creamery.

In Wilmette even steel girders were twisted into shapeless masses by the force of the wind, but fifty feet from its path a large greenhouse remained intact, with not even a pane of glass broken.

A farmer near Joliet found himself sitting on a rock stove in which the fire was still burning merrily just after the storm wrecked his house. He fled to a horse trough.

During the height of the blow in Elgin the auditorium of the St. John's Lutheran Church, where it demolished eighteen rows of pews. This apparently started the engine in reverse, for it backed out of the edifice and was blown around a nearby corner.

Passengers in a Chicago street car had a narrow escape. Seeing a funnel-shaped cloud coming their way, they demanded that the motorman stop the car. He not only did so, but changed controls and raced the other way. A moment later a mass of flying debris struck the spot where the car had been standing.

MARTIAL LAW IN ELGIN.

The town of Elgin was almost wiped out. Eight persons are known to be dead there and the damage is estimated at $4,000,000.

The entire city of Elgin is paralyzed and martial law has been declared with troops of the National Guard patrolling the city.

All accounts agree that the tornado started in the form of a cloud shaped like an inverted cone, coming from the southwest. Sunshine and then a driving rain and hailstorm preceded it. So clean was the path it cut that persons living within a block of it first learned of the tornado's visitation on going for a stroll after the storm, coming suddenly on the wrecked homes nearby.

Eight Trapped in Buildings in South Michigan Are Killed

By International News Service.

Detroit, March 29.—According to meager reports reaching here this morning at least eight persons are believed dead and many injured as a result of the tornado which swept over portions of south Michigan.

George Malburg, a farmer of Hart, Mich., was crushed to death when his barn collapsed before the gale.

Seven men were killed and a young woman seriously injured west of Fenton, Mich. Four of them were seeking refuge in an old cement plant when the building was blown down on them and three men were killed and a girl seriously injured when a farmhouse four miles west of Fenton blew down and then caught fire.

Georgia Homes Razed and Occupants Killed

By International News Service.

Atlanta, Ga., March 29.—As the shaped cloud coming their way, they demanded that the motorman stop the car. He not only did so, but changed from the storm-swept districts of Southwest Georgia and Southeastern Alabama, it was estimated that the number of dead in the path of the cyclone would reach eighty, and perhaps 100, with the injured between 250 and 400.

While the damaged districts cover a wide area, the most severe loss or damage centred around Lagrange, Ga., and West Point, Ga., which, a short time ago suffered extremely as the result of floods.

At Lagrange the most severe damage was inflicted in the residence districts, where it is reported more than thirty are dead and many residences are razed.

At West Point, the centre of the recent heavy flood, twelve are reported dead, the terrific wind there doing greater havoc in the business area.

Five fatalities are reported at Acrinola, Ala., and unconfirmed reports of loss of life through the country districts are coming in.

Wire communication this morning continued badly demoralized, miles of poles being blown down in several districts, swept by the cyclone.

Eighteen Known Dead in Northeastern Indiana

By International News Service.

Indianapolis, March 29.—Eighteen are known dead and unconfirmed reports place the death list at thirty-two in the big cyclone which swept more than half a dozen communities in Northeastern Indiana.

Known dead at Geneva number three, but late advices giving no additional names stated today four twelve are dead there.

Seven named dead were reported at West Liberty, and another unnamed person was reported dead. At Union City Mrs. Jennie Dennison is dead. Reports of three deaths at Zolis were still unconfirmed at noon today.

Boys Caught in Squall Believed to Have Drowned

Cleveland, March 29.—Two Sandusky lads who were fishing in a small boat on Sandusky Bay are believed to have been drowned when caught in the squall. Searching parties have been unable to locate any trace of them.

Telegraph poles have been piled high on interurban and railroad tracks, completely tying up traffic in many instances.

The announcement that Sir Nevil Macready, head of the London police force had been appointed commander of the British military forces in Ireland was made at the opening of Commons today. It is said that the powers will be greatly increased.

"The government's first duty is to protect Irish citizens, and will take all steps to fulfil it," said the Premier.

Sir Nevil is described by the Daily Express as coming nearer the idea of a military dictator than any man on the army list. His most recent achievement was the suppression of the police strike.

British Get Control of Dardanelles

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American Staff Correspondent.
(Special Cable Dispatch).

Berlin, March 29.—I am able to give the text of what purports to be a secret agreement between England and Turkey a year ago, without the knowledge of France and America, by which Constantinople was to remain in the hands of the Sultan, in return for which Britain secured control of the Dardanelles and other valuable concessions, including British domination of Syria and Mesopotamia.

The text of this alleged secret agreement, to which I alluded in a recent dispatch, was furnished me by Dr. Nazim Bey, who was minister of instruction in the cabinet of Talaat Pasha, then grand vizier.

WAS SIGNED LAST APRIL.

Dr. Nazim Bey declares the document was signed in Constantinople in April, 1918, by Messrs. Franner, Nolan and Churchill (Winston Spencer), representing Great Britain, and Demad Forid Pasha, head of the Turkish government at the time, on behalf of Turkey.

The alleged agreement consists of eight articles, as follows:

"Article 1—England, under her mandate guarantees Turkey's independence.

"Article 2—Constantinople remains the seat of the Caliphate and capital of Turkey. The Dardanelles will be placed under the control of England.

"Article 3—Turkey agrees not to oppose the creation of a Kurdistan nation.

BRITISH ENDS GRANTED.

Artiel 4—Turkey recognizes British domination of Syria and Mesopotamia, and, in case of necessity, will support it with material aid, and aside from that Turkey will exercise the moral power of the Caliphate in Syria and Mesopotamia to that end.

"Article 5—England obligates herself to place a police force at the disposal of Turkey for the suppression of any possible political counter-currents, should such arise after the creation of a quasi-constitutional government, for such a regime must be carried out in order to suppress any nationalistic tendencies.

"Article 6—Turkey renounces all her rights in Egypt and Cyprus.

"Article 7—This treaty is official but has a private character.

AGREEMENT REMAINS SECRET.

"Turkey's representatives obligate themselves to bring about acceptance of this treaty by the proper authorities.

"Article 8—After the peace conditions are determined, the Sultan will conclude a new treaty with Britain in which Turkey agrees to extend Article 4.

"The contents of this agreement remain secret."

Damad Forid Pasha, who was at the time in question Grand Vizier of Turkey, is a brother-in-law of Abdul Hamid; hence the title "Damad," which means "brother-in-law." He was at one time counsellor of the Turkish embassy at London and was also head of the Turkish peace delegation to Paris. For a period he was a member of the Young Turk movement, but left it later to become leader of the opposition to Enver Pasha and Talaat Pasha. He was asked by the Sultan to form a new cabinet after the armistice, whereupon the Young Turks' government, headed by Enver and Talaat, broke up and fled.

Later the Turkish Nationalists forced Damad Forid Pasha to resign, chiefly because he had agreed to the occupation of Smyrna (by Greece) and the alleged secret agreement with Britain given above.

WILL CAUSE SENSATION.

Pending official verification of the alleged Anglo-Turkish "secret agreement" quoted in the above dispatch, its authenticity may be open to scepticism, first, because Berlin has been for months the favorite haunt of Turkish Nationalist plotters seeking to sow discord among the allies through propaganda of all sorts; and, second, because of the intimate connection of the sponsor for this story, Dr. Nazim Bey, with Enver Pasha and Talaat Pasha, the two "arch-plotters," whose names, incidentally, are included in the entente's list of alleged war criminals.

However, if the document proves authentic—even though because of its provisional character it cannot be recognized as an actual "treaty"—it is certain to cause a profound sensation in Paris and London.

FRANCE ALREADY SUSPICIOUS.

The French public opinion, already greatly irritated against Britain, would regard the document as a proof of the charges that have become loud and insistent of late, that the British ally is playing a lone and selfish hand in the East, while those Britons who, like Viscount Bryce, are bitterly denouncing the decision to leave the Turk in Constantinople, would see in this alleged part a convincing refutation of Premier Lloyd George's argument that this decision was forced by circumstances.

Indeed, if it were proved that Britain officially pledged herself to keep the Turk in his capital, and did so a year ago, at the time when the peace conference of Paris was in full swing, the bottom would be knocked from under all the recent plaints of British statesmen that America's delay and America's refusal to accept the Turkish mandate were chiefly responsible for the new Turkish crisis and its proposed settlement.

BRITISH MANDATE A SURPRISE.

It will be observed that the agreement proceeds from the premise of a British mandate—a fact which stands in curious contrast with Britain's professed desire that America accept that mandate. As for the provision in Article II. for British control of the Dardanelles, it is of little consequence whether the document is false or authentic. This control is now an actual fact. In the creation of a "Kurdistan Nation" the Turkish nationalists have forestalled any plans that the signatories of the alleged agreement may have had in mind. Kurdistan has been proclaimed a kingdom, with Enver Pasha as king.

Article IV.—By which Turkey "recognizes British domination of Syria and Mesopotamia," if proved authentic is sure to furnish impetus to the anti-British charges whose latest exponent is ex-Premier Louis Bertioni. Syria is one of the sore spots in the France-British relations, and an agreement for British domination of that country (now a kingdom under the pro-British Prince Feisal) would fairly give the lie to official British protestations of sympathy with France's aims there.

RIVER BATTERS DOWN BRIDGE

Steel Structure at Brattleboro, Vt., Collapses, Drowning Aged Pedestrian

This bridge connects Newton and Needham.

Another rise of the Merrimack River was recorded at Lowell, where the water was running six feet above the dam, while at Clinton it was reported that the Wachusett reservoir was overflowing 500,000,000 gallons a day.

Rain tonight, with a drop of ten or more degrees in temperature by tomorrow morning was forecast today. The forecast reads: Rain tonight, Tuesday generally fair and somewhat colder, strong southwest winds.

The E. Frank Lewis Scouring Plant on the South Canal at Lawrence suspended operations because of the height of backwater. The Plymouth and Kunhardt mills were partially closed. The dye house at the Pacific Mills was shut down because of high water, and it was stated at the Uswico plant, that the plant's efficiency had been considerably retarded.

The Spickett River was on a rampage in North Lawrence. Summer houses and small buildings were swept into the current and two tenement buildings were washed from their foundations.

Property in South Lawrence and North Andover was threatened by the Shawsheen River, which had not given flood trouble in years. About 15 feet of Green street in North Andover was inundated.

The Wamesit cotton mill at Lowell was forced to close today, while cellars along the Concord River were flooded and the water formed a swift creek through Howe street, in the centre of the city.

The torrential sweep of the Connecticut River has taken its first toll of life and has destroyed the steel bridge, 360 feet long and 32 feet wide, at Brattleboro, Vt., erected in 1903 at a cost of $35,000.

Huge ice cakes, battering against the abutments at both ends of the bridge, swept the structure away and hurled Cornelius Flanagan, aged seventy-five, who was crossing from the mainland to his home on the island, to his death.

Other bridges along the river, one two miles above Brattleboro and another at Hinsdale, N. H., while reported undamaged, are in danger of destruction. The river has risen about two feet in twenty-four hours and is rising hourly.

At Bellows Falls, Vt., the Connecticut has flooded many farms in the lowlands, blocked the road to Rockingham, closed paper mills and compelled the removal of cattle to higher ground. The ice cakes are causing the bridges to tremble in this section, but they are not considered in danger of collapse.

Pumping engines are being used at Haverhill to pump water from the basements of several stores on Merrimack street. Flooded conditions also prevail in other parts of the city. Considrable property stored in the basements of some of the shoe factories on the river front has been destroyed.

MARTENS DENIES HE ADVOCATES VIOLENCE

Washington, March 29.—Denial that he had ever participated in any gatherings at which the overthrow of the United States government by force or violence was advocated was made today by Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, American representative of the Russian Soviet government, before the Moses sub-committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigating his activities in this country.

NEW YORK PUTS CLOCK AHEAD WITHOUT CONFUSION

While the fate of daylight saving in Massachusetts waits on the Senate's action tomorrow, it went into effect in New York State today without a hint of the confusion predicted by its enemies.

Boston's financial district alone was greatly affected by the change, because of its close association with the New York money world. Boston Stock Exchange and most of the State street brokerage house opened an hour early to conform to New York's time.

Travelers and the general public were unaffected. Trains continue to operate throughout the East on the old or Eastern time. Trains leave New York on the old schedule, but where the public faces confusion is in New York, where trains will arrive an hour later, city time, than under the old uniform system.

Attention of the "artful minority" in the State Senate that is endeavoring to block daylight saving in Massachusetts was centred today upon the smoothness with which New York made the transition. Scarcely a hitch was noted.

Edward F. Woods, chairman of the Boston Chamber of Commerce daylight saving committee, said that he saw no reason why the new schedule should not work out as smoothly in Massachusetts.

AVOIDED CONFUSION.

That confusion that did arise was due particularly to the failure of some persons using trains between commutation points to take into consideration the fact that clocks had been advanced an hour. Today the New York business world was running "in high."

There was some confusion in New Jersey. In the absence of a daylight saving law, some communities went on the new schedule to conform to New York, while others did not do so. But the confusion was expected to be only temporary.

Mr. Woods said that no doubt some State Senators were skeptical as to how the law would work out in New York, with surrounding States under old time.

"Today's results," he said, "should convince everyone on this score. If New York can make the change without a perceptible jolt, the Bay State can do the same."

It was learned that Governor Coolidge held his decision until he saw how New York made the change.

Favorable action is expected in the State Senate tomorrow when the bill comes up for consideration. An amendment will be proposed to make the bill effective the last Sunday in April so as to give the railroads and business generally time to prepare for the change.

POLES DEFEAT BOLSHEVIKS

Russians, With Heavy Reinforcements, Use German Methods in Campaign

By International News Service.

London, March 29. — The Russian Bolsheviks are continuing their offensive against the Poles with heavy reinforcements drawn from South Russia, said a Central News dispatch from Copenhagen today, quoting advices received there from Warsaw.

The heaviest assaults are being made on the Podolian-Volhynian front, but all were repulsed, the War Office announces.

Russian troops drawn from the south had previously been used in the campaign against General Denikin. They were well equipped but suffered heavy losses in their repeated attacks against the Polish lines. Warsaw announces the capture of many prisoners and much booty.

According to information received by the British War Office, the Russian offensive included three main attacks with isolated thrusts elsewhere. The three chief attacks were against both Polish flanks and the centre. The Russians employed German tactics by opening with violent bombardments and following up with infantry thrusts supported by fire from armored motor cars and trains.

There is no official confirmation of the reports which emanated from Berlin Saturday that the Russians have taken Vilna and that the Polish government has been withdrawn from Warsaw to Bromberg.

Poland has informed the allies that she has proposed to open negotiations with the Russian Soviet government on April 10. This proposal was sent to Moscow evidently from Warsaw by wireless.

REDS TAKE MORE GERMAN TOWNS

50,000 in Spartacist Army and Leader Declares Victory Is Certain

London, March 29. — The German Red forces in the Ruhr district continue their onward march and have captured six more villages from the government troops, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Munster, capital of Westphalia, today.

The government troops are expected to begin an offensive tomorrow. Violent artillery fighting is reported from Wesel.

The Independent Socialists at Berlin have issued a manifesto in behalf of the Spartacists in the Ruhr district, threatening the destruction of the Ruhr coal mines if the Spartacists are defeated, according to a Central News dispatch from Berlin.

Herr Ludwig, one of the chief leaders of the Ruhr Reds, is quoted by the Munster correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph as saying:

"The Spartacist army is only in the process of formation. We have 50,000 armed soldiers, but there are 200,000 more listed as recruits."

Ludwig is a Jew and is described by the correspondent as having powers in the Ruhr district that compare with those of Lenine in Russia.

"We have taken all the money from the banks in the district we hold and the Krupps will start to deliver munitions to us this week," said Ludwig. "Nearly all of the war experienced officers have been called upon to fight. Our leaders were trained in the military schools of the ex-Kaiser and the late Czar.

"The difficulty in getting food will not continue long, as we have control of the coal fields. Proclamations are being distributed by airplane in adjacent territory announcing gains in recruiting.

"I believe that the Reds throughout Germany will all rise up and that we will banish the old government. The movement will be world-wide shortly and then the proletariat will assume power everywhere."

DRY LAW APPEAL BEFORE COURT

New Jersey Contends Congress Has Encroached on Power of the State

By International News Service.

Washington, March 29.—The national prohibition amendment and the Volstead enforcement act were under attack today before the United States Supreme Court. Both were attacked on the ground of alleged unconstitutionality.

Attorney-General McCran of New Jersey presented the State's appeal against both the amendment and the enforcement act. He alleged that both were an unwarranted invasion of the police powers of the State and that the enforcement act was an illegal attempt by the Congress to control and regulate intrastate commerce. Even if the amendment would be held constitutional, he declared the enforcement act was invalid except insofar as it made provision for the control of interstate commerce.

Elihu Root, counsel for Christian Feigenspan, a New Jersey brewer, argued that the amendment was "mere legislation" and as such it had been presented under "color of an amendment to the Constitution, purposely written to bind future generation who might seek to free themselves from "an unpopular and an undesirable restriction."

The constitutionality of both the amendment and the Volstead enforcement act was upheld by both Solicitor General King and Assistant Attorney-General Frierson.

Other phases of the fight against the amendment and the Volstead act will come before the Supreme Court April 12, when the court will hear arguments in a case from Ohio, making a direct issue of the constitutionality of the referendum laws of that State, and cases from New York and California attacking the punitive and seizure features of the enforcement act.

Pattangall of Augusta, and Mrs. Antoinette Funk of Chicago, ex-chairman of the Women's Bureau of the Democratic National Committee.

The delegates elected will go to the National Convention unInstructed.

SON OF BOSTON BANKER JAILED

Richard Ames and Ryan's Grandson Run Afoul Law in New York

New York, March 29.—Sight of flapjacks flapping in the window griddle of a Columbus Circle restaurant tempted Thomas F. Ryan, nephew of Deputy Police Commissioner Allan A. Ryan, and Richard Ames, a Boston broker's son. They went in, ordered food and got it.

In the course of the meal an argument started and the two were ordered to leave the place.

This they refused to do, the police say, and they were put out. The discussion was being continued outside the restaurant door when Patrolman Hastendorf told them to move on.

TALK WAS HIS UNDOING.

Another argument, Ryan, it is said, disappeared. Undaunted, Ames continued the argument. Soon he was before the desk sergeant at a police station. Directly afterward Ryan also appeared.

Later both young men were arraigned in the West Side Court before Magistrate Sweetser. Ames' head was bandaged.

Hattendorf told the court that he had inflicted the wounds in self-defence after young Ames attempted to beat him with a cane. Ames pleaded "guilty." The magistrate said:

"You are each fined $10, with the alternative of one day's imprisonment."

The youths smiled and dug into their pockets. But they did not have $20 between them. They were marched into a cell.

NAMES ACTED LIKE MAGIC.

Through the bars Ryan said that he was the son of John R. Ryan of No. 13 West Tenth street, and a grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan. Word was passed back to the magistrate and the young men were called up again.

After the magistrate had questioned Ryan he asked Ames who he was. Ames told him and added that he had come to New York for the week-end and was staying at the Harvard Club. The Court said:

"Well, as you have had your experience and are not able to cash a check, I will suspend sentence. Don't try any more week-ends of that sort."

Her case came up in Juvenile Court this morning. Her arrest took place after a Valley street woman complained to the police that she had been robbed of $12 and a Common street woman called at police headquarters with the story that $20 had been taken from her pocket in a five and ten-cent store.

AYER OPPOSES POLICE CUT

Proposed Dropping of Officer Blood from Force to Be Fought at Mass Meeting

Ayer, March 29.—This town is all worked up over the proposed reduction of the police force. There is a division of sentiment as to whether the "force" of four or five men should be increased or decreased. The Selectmen have voted to decrease the force by one man, the last man added to be the one to retire.

Albert S. Blood, whose record in stopping runaway horses and holding up speeding autoists is known far and wide, is the man selected for the town father's official axe. His friends are Legion and are rallying to his support. A mass meeting in the Town hall to express their indignation at what they call "high handed proceedings," is advocated. Blood is slated to be retired April 1.

That the people of the town are excited over the police situation is putting it mildly. On the contrary, they are at the boiling point and threaten dire political vengeance on the heads of those behind the retiring of Officer Blood, who is a favorite with soldiers at Camp Devens. The first the people of the town knew of the proposed retirement of Blood was when this item appeared in the "Public Spirit."

The Selectmen here have voted to decrease the town police force by one man, the last man added to be the one to retire. As Albert S. Blood is the youngest of the present force in point of service, he will retire on April 1. The welfare of the community, which the Boston American of Tuesday, March 9, facetiously pictured as threatened with riot and other component parts of a "catastrophe" will be, despite the reduction of the force, safe in the hands of the members who remain. In fact, it is prophesied that no one will know the difference save the retiring member, whose beat must henceforth be elsewhere."

Former Selectman George Wilson opened the sensational act of the voters when he said: "Let the force remain as it is."

SOULMATE LOST, ALSO $32,000

Broker Told by Court That His Love-Making and Loans Are Gone Forever

St. Paul, Minn., March 29.—William Mueller, wealthy Chicago broker, must abandon hope of recovering $32,000 which he alleges he advanced to Mrs. Laura C. Shepley of St. Paul. After reading 600 fervent love letters Mr. Mueller addressed to Mrs. Shepley, Judge J. C. Michaels of the Ramsay County District Court ruled that Mueller had no claim against the woman. The decision became public today.

According to Mueller he first met Mrs. Shepley on December 18, 1917, on a train between New York and Chicago. She posed as a secret service agent, according to Mueller.

ARDENT LOVE MAKING.

He admitted from that time until September 15, 1919, there had been an intensive campaign of love-making. There were frequent parties at divers hotels in sundry cities, tender glances, fond embraces, cafe luncheons and taxi rides. All the while Mrs. Shepley posed as an unmarried woman, according to Mueller. He knew her as Dr. Ernesta A. Pearson.

Judge Michaels recounted the events in the life of the couple between their meeting and separation.

"During all this time," he said, "it appears Laura separated from William in varying amounts the aggregate sum of $32,000. William furnished the money with as ease and liberality that was a delight to Laura, and without any hope or suggestion of its repayment, although Laura frequently promised to repay it. But instead of doing so, one cold September morning Laura told William to go to hell, and now William wants his money back."

BOUGHT MANSION.

Judge Michaels further observed that Mueller was infatuated with Laura, and though he hoped to marry her, his purpose in maintaining the stream of certified checks and currency was from the first immoral. The court therefore held that Mueller had no claim on the woman and could not recover the money he gave her.

Judge Michaels exonerated Mr. Shepley, husband of the woman, from any knowledge of the source of the money used by his wife in the purchase of a mansion in St. Paul.

G. O. P. PUTS UP $12,000,000 TO GET A CANDIDATE

New York, March 29.—Political seers predict that the late Mark Hanna's reputed outlay of $16,000,000 to ELECT William McKinley President in 1896 will be equalled by Republican managers in the NOMINATING campaign of 1920. They are aghast when asked what the campaign to ELECT the next President will cost.

Such a Niagara of money, managers agree, was never circulated in any five pre-convention campaigns as has been expended already. Yet the Chicago conclave is not due for two months.

The most enormous amounts have been collected or contracted for chiefly by the Wood, Lowden and Hoover movements.

$2,000,000 FOR WOOD RUMORED.

It is alleged that:

Wood managers have already spent upward of $2,000,000.

Lowden managers have spent as much or more.

Hoover managers, starting late, are said to have obligated themselves for twice the combined Wood-Lowden funds in an attempt to grab both the Democratic and the Republican nominations.

Principal sources of supply, according to those best informed, are:

Wood campaign—Steel, copper, zinc soap and pump groups.

Lowden campaign—Banking, railroad, steamship and insurance groups.

Hoover campaign—Grain, oil and other food and utility groups.

ORIGIN OF WOOD CAMPAIGN.

The Wood financial enterprise really began a year ago next month at a dinner in honor of General Wood at the Fifth avenue home of the late Henry C. Frick. The following steel managers are said to have underwritten the original Wood campaign: Mr. Frick, George W. Perkins, Charles M. Schwab, James A. Farrell, Colonel Bacon, Daniel G. Reid and John S. Phipps.

The late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt had selected John T. King as Wood's campaign manager. Mr. Perkins is said to have demanded as a condition of the steel men coming across that King be displaced. Mr. Perkins wanted himself or one of his own substituted. The general remained months.

The soap combine headed by Colonel William Cooper Procter of Cincinnati, original the General into forming the Leonard Wood League, King, who in so said to have received the first installment of money from the steel men and $250,000 from the copper and zinc group headed by Ambrose Monell, and $50,000 from Kuhn, Loeb & Company, began to ride the continent. He discovered that Colonel Procter was issuing orders to national committeemen, State and even county chairmen in disregard of his own. Mr. King repeatedly protested to General Wood.

COL. PROCTER WINS COMMAND.

Wood egged King to be patient. Perkins continued his onslaughts upon King, declaring he would not contribute a cent nor would his steel friends hand over any more until King was ousted.

Dan R. Hanna of Cleveland, son of the master of the McKinley campaign, also served notice upon Wood that not a dollar would be subscribed nor a stroke of work would he do unless King were thrown out. Frank H. Hitchcock, who had conducted the pre-convention delegate hunting canvass for Charles E. Hughes in 1916, suddenly "offered" a batch of delegates from Florida, Arizona, New Mexico and other States if he were given supreme command.

The Hitchcock offer was held in abeyance for months. It was finally accepted with the stipulation that Mr. King be dropped and Colonel Procter placed in full charge while Hitchcock did the "field sleuth" trick.

King was forced out. He refused to furnish General Wood or anybody else with an accounting of how much money he had collected or expended or how many delegates he had pledged.

GOULD IN CHARGE OF EAST.

Colonel Procter was compelled to begin an entirely new campaign, Mr. Perkins still held out. But Mr. Schwab, of the steel group, came to the rescue. He not only publicly declared himself for Wood, but there quickly followed a stream of gold into the Wood coffers.

Norman J. Gould, the wealthy Seneca Falls pump manufacturer, was placed in charge of the East. Colonel Procter raised a huge amount among his anti-United Leagues in the West. He announced that "General Wood is the only national candidate," and would carry into the battle the entire fortyeight States, even into those harbering favorite sons.

Bills incurred by Hitchcock in Arizona were paid, and six delegates for Wood from that State were announced as pledged.

WOOD EXPENSES HIGHEST.

What the cost was only Procter and Hitchcock probably know. The next raid was upon Minnesota. Colonel Procter conducted this personally, aided by General McChesney, of the Chicago office, and John J. McGraw of Oklahoma. It is alleged that $500,000 was poured into the Gopher State. Johnson carried St. Paul. Minneapolis and Hennepin County, giving him at least four delegates. Wood and Lowden split the other twenty-fifty-fifty.

Tennessee was then attacked. Senator Moses went after that State. Lowden managers put a wad of money in there. So did the Wood managers. The delegation was split between them.

Johnson spokesmen have publicly charged that the Wood men spent over $200,000 in South Dakota and an equal amount in North Dakota. They also allege that the Lowden men expended more than a $200,000 total in both States. Less than 60,000 votes were cast at the primaries.

Wood nosed out Lowden by about 5,000. Johnson was a good third in a State in which he had no organization and was able to make only two speeches.

WOOD HAS 55 OF 984.

New Hampshire cost the Wood forces little money. It is the general's native State.

Financially and in every other way desperate efforts were made to capture the delegation from Connecticut. This is Mr. King's home State. He said, before he was thrown overboard as manager, that he had pocketed all fourteen delegates.

The Wood men revengefully helped to oust King from the national committee, but they could not prevent his election as a delegate to the national convention. Instead of the fourteen Connecticut delegates promised Wood, they are split between Lowden and Harding.

King himself is likely to support Lowden or Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts if the Governor goes to the bat at Chicago.

Despite the claims of the Wood managers, only fifty-eight out of 984 delegates have been pledged to the General, though they are claiming a hundred.

BUNDLES OF MONEY SPENT.

It is admitted in both Wood and Lowden camps that great bundles of money are being used to corral illinois at the primaries, April 13. The $1,000,000 raised by the Wood men in the Prairie State is to be met with a similar or larger amount by the backers of the son of the late George M. Pullman.

Illinois is Governor Lowden's home. He cannot afford to be defeated there, even if he is defeated elsewhere, his friends say.

Mutual accusations of collection and spending the greatest amounts ever used to carry the State at a Presidential election are made by opposing leaders. Colonel Procter has plastered the State with portraits and sketches of General Wood.

Lowden managers have bought space in country newspapers equal to that bought by Procter, to advertise their favorite.

The Wood men have not named candidates for delegates. They insist, however, that they will try to carry the preferential primaries and that the delegates elected there must comply with the direction of voters.

THOMPSON HOLDS KEY.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago seems to hold the key to the situation. He has persistently declined to declare for either Lowden or Wood. Wood managers, it is charged, are trying to make a bargain with certain Thompson lieutenants. It is said to have been spurned. Thompson says:

"I want to see the platform before I talk about candidates."

The Hoover campaign originally proclaimed by Julius H. Barnes has become nation-wide. Mr. Barnes as chairman of the United States Grain Corporation was Hoover's aide when Hoover was Food Administrator.

Four great New York hotels are Hoover headquarters in New York. Hundreds of munificently paid men and women are employed. Captain John F. Lucey is Eastern manager for Hoover. Ralph Arnold of the oil combination is riding the country organizing the States.

Johnson managers accuse the Hoover outfit of being financed by the international banking interests, with the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan at the head. These interests are negotiating the sale of $40,000,000,000 of German gold indemnity bonds, which Johnson managers say the interests want "President" Hoover to guarantee.

HOOVER "ALL SET."

Captain Lucey asserts that Hoover organizations have been formed in these States: New York, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Illinois, Idaho, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire and Texas.

The Hooverites plan to storm the Republican convention, though Hoover has yet to say whether he is a Republican or a Democrat. If defeated at Chicago the Hoover men will go on to San Francisco and try to grab the Democratic nomination.

The expenses of the Hoover movement are increasing enormously day by day.

CONDEMNS U. S. U-BOAT POLICY

Took Two Years to Convince Secretary Daniels, Says Admiral Grant

Washington, March 29.—The Navy Department was criticised today for not having sufficient submarines to cope with German U-boats when the United States entered the war.

Rear Admiral A. W. Grant, formerly in charge of the navy's submarine activities, told a sub-committee of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee that "it took two years to convince the Navy Department that it should construct submarines equal to the German U-boats."

Senator Keyes, Republican, of New Hampshire, asked "if we had any submarines fit for service when we entered the war?"

"No, we did not," Grant replied. He said he began making recommendations in 1915, but "received no support from the Navy Department."

The policy pursued, Grant said, resulted not only in lack of "subs," but also in a lack of trained personnel.

Later Grant said the submarines could not be properly kept in condition owing to poor preparations for repair work.

"The department never attempted to design its own submarines," Grant said. He described how the department went on purchasing ordinary "subs."

"The purchase of old-type submarines was a step backward which I protested against," Grant continued. He said that before the war he met opposition from the general board.

Describing the need for repair work in 1917, Grant said that in "battleship force one," which he commanded, "not one vessel could have remained afloat after it received an underwater explosion."

Senator Hale asked if the American fleet could have met the German ships in 1917.

"We would have gone out and done the best we could, but it wouldn't have been very much," Grant replied. The ships lacked repairs and trained crews, Grant said.

FOUR SAILORS FINED AFTER VISIT TO CUBA

Fines ranging from $5 to $15 were assessed four members of the crew of the Yelverton in the East Boston Court today. The men had concealed liquor in their bunks, following a call at a Cuban port, and after drinking it refused to obey the orders of Captain H. C. Prichard. The prisoners were Edgar Orr, John Vigilant, Thomas Donnelly and Edward Prisendofer. Orr was fined $15, Vigilant $10 and the others $5 each.

UNION AND EMPLOYERS CONFER ON DEMANDS

Brockton, March 29.—There was a conference here today between the heads of the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' Association and the Shoe Fasteners' Union, to dispose of alleged grievances brought forward by the union men. The unions complain that last January's agreement regarding the grading of "piece work" is not being lived up to by the shoe manufacturers.

So the Court Let Both "Guys" Go Home

The testimony of a ten-year-old colored boy today evoked laughter in Municipal Court, where Thomas Smith, an English High School student, was charged with assault on Edward Mason of Wellington street, South End. Each accused the other of assault.

The witness, Fred Williams, began his story with boyish eagerness, pointing alternately to the litigants: "This guy came up and hit that guy, and that guy hit him and then fell down——"

Judge Murray interrupted: "Now take it easy—did both guys fall down?" Smith was discharged.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." What! Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or Wash-over mama you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore, cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used while you work and while you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO Co., Elec. Life Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary.

DONLAN TO FACE CHARGES

Move Will Be Made to Have Trustees Oust Long Island Doctor

Charges will be made against Dr. Charles F. Donlan at a meeting of the infirmary trustees in an effort to bring about his removal as superintendent of Long Island hospital, according to Penal Institutions Commissioner Thomas C. O'Brien, who is also chairman of the trustees.

A battle in the courts is believed to be imminent as Dr. Donlan has indicated that he will fight the action of the trustees. He has thus far refused to accede to their request to resign.

Chairman O'Brien would not indicate upon what the charges would be based, but the trustees have just completed a thorough investigation of conditions at Long Island following sensational charges by City Councillor McLaughlin that patients were neglected during the epidemic of influenza which claimed forty-four victims.

Dr. Donlan will not be present at the meeting at which the charges will be made, and the trustees will submit their action for approval to the mayor, it was indicated. This will be the second attempt to oust Dr. Donlan as superintendent during the Peters administration. The first was in November, 1918, when the trustees succeeded in getting him out only to have him restored by order of a municipal court judge.

LEGISLATION TO KEEP MARINE

Senate Committee Prepares Favorable Report on Merchant Ships

Washington, March 29.—Legislation to insure the stability and permanence of the United States merchant marine will be reported favorably by the Senate Commerce Committee, according to views expressed today by members of the committee.

Members of the Senate committee and Rear-Admiral Benson, chairman of the Shipping Board, are in accord in their views that what the merchant marine gained during the war at a cost of more than $3,000,000,000 should be continued under the United States flag.

"The committee is working on a plan to insure the stability of the United States merchant marine," Chairman Jones, Republican, of Washington, said today. "Several members of the committee are out of Washington and the bill cannot be completed until they return."

The bill passed by the House would dispose of the Shipping Board vessels without providing for a permanent merchant marine, according to members of the Senate.

The plan of the Senate Committee will be to create in the Shipping Board an institution similar to the British Board of Trade, which aids the development of the merchant marine of Great Britain. The committee is willing to do all possible for the encouragement of the building of merchant carriers.

Mother! Teach the Children Their Daily Health Duty

You can't be too insistent!

FEW children find pleasure in the things most vital to their physical comfort and health, so it rests with the watchful mother to see that they are done. The child will be grateful in after years.

Chief among the functions necessary to the upbuilding of the little body, so that it will not be a dyspeptic, constipated body when it matures, is elimination regularly every morning. If the mother will be insistent and allow nothing to interfere with it, it will soon become a habit, a daily routine that will not be forgotten throughout life.

There are times, however, when nature will not operate unaided. Then give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, and the headaches, the biliousness, the torpor will quickly disappear. It acts gently and without griping, and as it contains no narcotics and is pleasant to the taste, it may be given to infants. Thousands of families have been regulated to healthy maternity with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

A bottle can be bought at any drug store. In a large family there is always someone who would feel better for a dose of a good medicine like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois.

Inquiry at Brockton to Learn Whether Patient Was Injured by Officers

Brockton, March 29.—An investigation was begun today into the death at the Brockton Hospital of Hector Bonnette, 27, of No. 24½ Boyden street.

The investigation is to determine whether Bonnette's death resulted from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Friday night at South Hanson or in a fight with police at the hospital Saturday forenoon.

Bonnette was one of four men in the automobile accident. The others were William C. Otis, 29, of No. 231 Centre street, Brockton; Norbert Cote, 19, of No. 52 Taylor street, and Joseph Frawley of Montonset.

The young men created a disturbance shortly after they were brought to the hospital, according to attendants. The police were summoned and a free-for-all fight took place. Otis and Cote were arrested on the charge of being drunk and disturbing the peace.

Otis and Cote were in court today, but disposition of their cases was postponed pending the outcome of the investigation.

"Complexion Secrets Of An Actress"

is a recently issued volume bearing a modest title, the author says: "Quit ruining the use of greasy paints, rouges and the like that only clog the pores, and which soon coalesce, wrinkled, coarse and pimpled skin. Some years ago in England I heard of the virtues of mercolized wax, and after experimenting with the marvelous solutions convinced me. It was more than that—it was a revelation—a revelation. Now whenever my complexion begins to show signs of fatigue, a ounce of mercolized wax at the nearest drug store, dissolved in a cupful of hot water, brought me a delightful result before retiring, washing it off next morning, my face looked fresh and youthful, and after several treatments, seems literally to absorb the wrinkles, leaving the skin soft, velvety, healthier, younger-looking skin appears.

"Even the wrinkles and enlarged pores became invisible, and the use of powder, rouge, cold cream, dissolved in a bath tub of cold water, has been a delight to me. I use this every day for a while soon results in a complexion most wonderfully beautified."—Advertisement.

IRISH SOCIETIES WILL MEET TO PROTEST MURDER SYSTEM

Representatives of Irish societies from all sections of Greater Boston will meet in Faneuil Hall next Sunday evening to protest against the system in Ireland responsible for the murder of Lord Mayor McCurtain of Cork and other Sinn Fein leaders.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the Knights of St. Patrick, or Corkmen's Association. Those in charge of the arrangements are Michael Dolan, chairman; Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge; Francis J. W. Ford of the Boston City Council; James T. Barrett, president of the Cambridge City Council; Rabbi Israel Mattuck; Joseph J. Sheehan, Michael J. Dullea, John J. Shine, P. M. O'Connor, Patrick J. Hanlon, Patrick J. Driscoll, Daniel Manning, Jeremiah J. Buckley and Philip Coleman.

WOBURN NEAR THE TOP.

Word was received today at the quarters of the American Commission on Irish Independence that Woburn is well on the road to being "over the top" in the Irish bond certificate drive. To date more than $4,000 has been subscribed for bonds in that city, where Dr. William H. Kelleher, chairman of the local drive, and an energetic committee is busily engaged in enrolling every family of Irish birth or extraction as subscribers to the fund. People of other nationalities, imbued with the spirit of fair play for the Emerald Isle, are buying bonds.

Contributions from Irish organizations in and about Boston continue to pour into the Boston headquarters of the drive fund. The Daly Club of Medford reports that the people of his city are rallying with alacrity to the support of the fund. The Daly Club, Ayer Town Hall, which was attended by a large number of soldiers, held a large and enthusiastic meeting. Hon. Gunn, in charge of the drive in that city, has opened quarters there and is ably assisted by the local branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom and the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

ROCKLAND DOES WELL.

From Rockland comes word that the mass meeting held in the Rockland Theatre resulted in the sale of several hundred dollars' worth of bonds. Another meeting will be held in that town shortly, under the direction of the local division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Friends of Irish Freedom.

To an audience of men and women that filled the Ayer town hall, Thomas H. Mahoney and Thomas F. Phelan, both of Boston, explained the Irish cause and won rounds of applause when they spoke in support of the recognition by the United States government of the Irish Republic. Judge Atwood of the District Court and Judge Moloney of the United States Court occupied seats in the front of the hall, which was decorated with the Stars and Stripes and the Irish tricolor and green of Ireland, and followed the addresses of the speakers. Thomas H. McGlinn of the local Irish bond drive committee presided.

WOBURN SUBSCRIBERS.

DRIVER SO SPEEDY HE REACHES COURT

Salem, March 29.—With fifty automobiles of every description in line. Not only that, but Chairman A. Chester of Lynn was fined $100 and costs for an auto while under influence of liquor by Judge Sears in Salem Court. Chester was arrested by the Middleton police after going through that town fifty miles an hour with the influence of hard cider behind him. Incidentally, Chester drove the big truck over an embankment, turning over with it and broke a collar bone.

STRIKE CALLED ON CHINESE RESTAURANT

Brockton, March 29.—Work on the new Chinese restaurant to be known as the Shantung Inn was stopped by a strike order by the Brockton Building Trades Council. The move is part of the general campaign of organized labor against the invasion of Brockton by Chinese enterprises employing cheap Oriental help.

Flats Bar Children; Mother Kills Self

Chicago, March 29.—"No children allowed."

Everywhere Mrs. Agnes Ready went in her long, weary trudge for an apartment she was told the same cruel story. Pekinese spaniels, Japanese chows, canaries and even pedigreed cats—these would be welcomed—but not her babies, Albert, three years old, and John, one and one-half.

Discouraged, Mrs. Ready kissed her two children, entered the bathroom, locked the door and then shot herself through the temple.

was due to the advice of Dr. Grayson, who believes that a change of environment would aid materially in his rapid recovery.

David F. Houston, secretary of the treasury, and his family, have spent nearly every Summer for the past six years at Woods Hole, and it is presumed that he joined with Mr. Crane in commending the locality to the President.

Woods Hole is the site of one of the largest stations of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, consisting of a big residence building, laboratory and huge hatchery. A large station is also maintained by the American Marine Biological Association.

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY TO GET BED IN JAIL

Edward Fortier, twenty-three, and Claude Ingles, twenty, of Hudson Falls, New York, returned three after being put out of the North Station. They told Judge Murray today that they could find no place to sleep. A request for permission to occupy a bench in the police station brought forth, they declared, the information that the only way they could get into the station to sleep was to get arrested. The cases were placed on file and Judge Murray said that he would assist them in seeking jobs.

SEAMEN ENTITLED TO COLLECT PART PAY

Washington, March 29.—Constitutionality of that section of the Seaman's act requiring part payment of wages on demand by masters of vessels to seamen was upheld today by the Supreme Court. Owners of the British steamship Strathern appealed against an award by the Federal Court of Appeals for the Florida district.

EJECTMENT CASES IN NDORCHESTER COURT

Eight ejectment proceedings growing out of disputes over rent were heardt in Dorchester district court civil side by Judge Churchill today. The several cases ejectment proceedings were brought by landlords for the purpose of "making room for relatives." A few summonses were for arrears of rent.

OTHER CITIES IN RENT FIGHT

Lawrence, Malden and Haverhill to Have Branches of Tenants' League

to indorse the league and its aims, will preside at the meeting.

Representative Martin Hays of Ward 25, Brighton, will explain his bill to stop profiteering in rents, and his reasons for urging an extraordinary conference on the rent situation between the heads of the executive, judicial and legislative departments of the State government.

Many of the leading citizens of Lawrence have endorsed the league and its aims, and a great outpouring of citizens is expected at the mass meeting.

While signed enrollment blanks in the league are pouring in from every city and town in the Commonwealth, and hearty endorsements of the aims of this organization in backing the legislation proposed by Representative Hays, and similar bills from every hand, several cities are arranging mass meetings to form local branches of the league.

Malden and Haverhill are among the cities where big mass meetings to spread this great movement are being planned. Wednesday night a mass meeting will be held in Revere under the auspices of Mayor Walsworth and the Tenants' League, at which Representative Hays will speak.

One of the most gratifying endorsements of the aims of the league comes by wire from James H. Gannon, Jr., Director of Revenue and Finance, Jersey City, who organized and led the successful "rent strike" in that city.

ROCKLAND FAVORS LEAGUE.

Commissioner Gannon wires: "The proposed bill regulating net profit on real estate decided to housing commendable in this crisis. A home is as much a utility as gas, electricity or a trolley car, and the cost for its use should be regulated until the present crisis is past. Success to your good work."

Householders who have recently enrolled in the Boston American Tenants' League are the selectmen and principal officials of Rockland, as well as the Rockland post of the American Legion and other influential organizations.

Tomorrow the important hearing on the Hays order calling for a conference between the heads of the State executive, judicial and legislative departments takes place at the State House. The importance of such a conference in the framing of the best legislation for combating profiteering is expected that all organizations having the civic good at heart will be represented at this hearing.

ITALIAN CLUBS ACTIVE.

Many Italian organizations are taking an active interest in the League. At the meeting of the Gabriele D'Annunzio club, on the motion of Vincenzo Santangelo, seconded by Fidele Del Bene, it was unanimously voted to endorse the League and to have every member enroll in the League. President Giuseppe Cia Vardonne, Secretary Ettore Di Palio and Treasurer Silvio Galanie were appointing a committee to carry out this order.

The San Benelli Benevolent Society took similar action, enrolling in a body after endorsing the League.

President Fidele Del Bene, of the Hod Carriers' and Excavators' Union, one of the largest Italian unions, expects his organization to take similar action at its meeting. Other Italian organizations which will vote upon the matter in the near future are the Italian Court of the Foresters of America and Ansonia Council, K. of C.

Mrs. W. E. Rice of No. 3 Reddy avenue, Hyde Park, president of the Greater Boston Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail Association, gives the Hays bill her personal endorsement and will bring it before her club for theirs. "From all reports," said Mrs. Rice, "there appears to be a great deal of profiteering about Boston. The situation is grave; in the matter of one of the most necessary essentials to human life—housing—such conditions as the present may well be characterized as acute. Something ought to be done. From my point of view I should judge the Hays measure to be a very good bill."

Mrs. Albert W. Pratt, No. 92 Fairview avenue, Belmont, president of the Daughters of Vermont Club, considers the Hays bill important enough for clubwomen to become familiar with. "This is a fundamental economic problem," said Mrs. Pratt. "The provisions of the Hays bill, as far as the 10 per cent. profit for landlords goes, mean fair to me. I will place the bill before my clubwomen at our next meeting, on April 16 for their consideration."

Miss Maria L. Baldwin, president of the League of Women for Community Service, will bring the Martin Hays bill before her club at its next meeting, Thursday evening, for endorsement. "I am not an expert on the rent question," said Miss Baldwin. "The layman must, at times, wonder at the rights of the situation. If landlords are really gouging their tenants, the Hays bill is a bit of social service that is needed. I shall be most happy to bring the bill before my club for its thoughtful consideration."

New York Rent Victims Find Shelter in Hotels

New York, March 29.—Thousands of persons, weary from their endless search for suitable apartments, are turning to the hotels of New York for shelter. Never before in the city's history have so many demands been made upon hotels for permanent quarters.

Welcoming them with open arms, many hotel owners agreed to 25 per cent. reduction over regular transient rents, and have signed up many hundreds of time leases running from six months to a year.

Active preparations are now under way to receive and care for many thousands of new guests who will become homeless after May 1.

Moving van companies reported yesterday that they were "booked solid" with orders between April 20 and May 10. The prevailing rate, they said, would be from $50 per vanload and upward for distances of one mile.

At the Hotel Belleclaire, Broadway and Sixty-seventh street, it was said that the regular rates would be reduced about 25 per cent. to take care of "time tenants."

The management of Bretton Hall, Broadway and Eighty-sixth street, said that the inability of well-to-do families to secure domestic help or to obtain suitable high class apartments had resulted in sending hundreds of persons to their hotel and that many more were expected.

At the Hotel Marseilles, Broadway and One Hundred and Third street, the management reported that 60 per cent. of their tenants were now under long term leases and that a 25 per cent. reduction in rents for such were in effect.

SHOT THROUGH WINDOW FRIGHTENS PATIENTS

Milford, March 29.—Considerable excitement was caused among the patients in the Milford hospital by the firing through a window of the room occupied by the wife of Dr. F. E. Hall of a bullet from a 22-caliber rifle by a boy.

TWO PERISH IN BEDFORD FIRE

William H. Beals and Baby Girl Trapped in Room as House Burns

Bedford, March 29.—William H. Beals and his year-old daughter Ruth were burned to death when fire destroyed his house and barn on North road here today. Mrs. Beals and four other children were awakened and made their way to safety shortly after the fire started.

Glenn Conner, a neighbor, discovered the fire and rushed over with a ladder. When he arrived Mrs. Beals and the children were on the lawn. Conner placed his ladder to the window of the room in which Beals and the baby were sleeping, but was unable to get in because of the fire and smoke.

Later the charred bodies of the two were found.

The fire started in the kitchen, apparently from a defective flue, and before help arrived had reached the barn. The loss was estimated at nearly $10,000.

CHARGE OFFICER WITH SMUGGLING OF LIQUOR

Houlton, Me., March 29.—Andrew L. Cantell, deputy sheriff of Aroostook County, was arrested at Van Buren, sixty miles from here, charged with smuggling liquor into this State from Canada. Cantell was taken into custody with Robert B. Stewart of Bangor, a conductor on the Bangor & Aroostook railroad, by Federal Officers John H. Fahey and W. W. Cheverie of Boston. The men were arraigned before Commissioner Hale at Bangor and held in $500 each for their appearance tomorrow.

'CARPENTIER HAS CHANCE OF DEFEATING JACK DEMPSEY'—CORBETT

LONG BOUT WILL HELP VISITOR

Former Champion Spars With French Marvel—Latter Surprises Old Ring Wizard

(James J. Corbett, the boxer who revolutionized the heavyweight division, went through an impromptu boxing exhibition with Georges Carpentier yesterday and herewith furnishes his views of the French champion to the Boston American readers.)

By JAMES J. CORBETT,
Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.

New York, March 29.—As it was my privilege to meet Georges Carpentier yesterday at the home of Jack Curley at Great Neck, I want to say that this French lad swept me off my feet by his wonderful personality.

There isn't the slightest doubt that he has travels through this country he will add countless thousands to his list of friends.

A few minutes with him and you know he is a genuine man and a good fellow.

Naturally I was anxious to find out all I could about his much talked of skill in the ring.

There was no ring nor gloves around so at the request of Carpentier and his party he and I sparred a few minutes.

In those few moments I was convinced that all they said about him in Europe was true.

He amazed me by the wonderful speed he displayed and his footwork would do credit to any toe dancer. He just flitted around, gliding as it were, and startled all present that he had footwork down to the latest word of perfection.

Now as far as his chances with Jack Dempsey are concerned I will say this: If he can manage to keep out of the reach of Dempsey's thundering punches for three or four rounds his chances are more than promising.

Don't allow any person to tell you that he is too slight and frail for a man of the tremendous power of Dempsey. I reiterate, if he can step away from the Dempsey wallop, then he may possibly spring the sensation of the century.

SURPRISE FOR VETERAN.

Of course, this little exhibition I had with the French idol can hardly be called a thorough test, still he is so clever, speedy and agile that I know it will be hard for anybody to hit him.

Again, I was agreeably surprised when I looked him over carefully. At first glance he impressed you as being a model fashion youth.

As you take in his sloping shoulders, recognize the muscles rolling in these powerful muscles, you begin to concede he must possess some real ability. Then when he shows you these shoulders, you have to admit he is there.

In mentioning he will be dangerous if he gets through the early rounds I take into consideration that he is such a wonderful "ducker" it is going to be hard for anybody to hit him in a vital spot. And a man who can not constantly grows as tired as a man that hits continually. That's another point that will favor Carpenter.

And when that comes about Carpentier may be able to land a few hard blows, his record proves he can hit, and hit real hard. This means, in my opinion, that a fight between Dempsey and Carpentier should furnish more thrills than ever happened in a championship affair.

WEIGHT ISN'T ALL.

As far as the difference in weights is concerned I must go back many years and recall the day I fought John L. Sullivan. The Boston Roman tipped the beam around the 200-pound mark, while I only weighed 178 pounds.

Again when I fought the sixty-one round affair with Peter Jackson the latter was at 205 pounds while I was thirty-seven pounds lighter.

These two incidents show that weight isn't everything in a fight of big men. Carpentier is just at my weight when I was at my best, and when I was champion. So the weight question is somewhat of a bugaboo.

When I defeated Sullivan that eventful day there were any number of John L.'s admirers that went when it was over and said he was in no shape. They branded my victory as a fluke, but before the fight they were anxious to lay 10 to 1 against me. The fact that Sullivan and myself fought twenty-one rounds didn't appeal to them.

Any time you get a man to last twenty-one rounds he must be in shape.

What really defeated Sullivan was he was a fighter pure and simple, while I was a boxer. And the longer a fight lasts the better chance the boxer has. Carpentier is a boxer and Dempsey is a fighter. Therefore, draw your own conclusions. Dempsey is my friend, so is Carpentier.

HAGEN HIGHEST IN GOLF POOL

Pros Battle in First Round of North and South Championships

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 29.—Practically all of the star professionals played today the first thirty-six holes of the seventy-two holer medal play competition for the North and South Open Golf Championship.

The Walter Hagen-Jim Barnes feud was continued in this tournament, as these two crack shots were among the starters, along with Mike Brady, Leo Diegel, Charley Hoffner, Tom Boyd and Emmet French.

Francis Ouimet did not play as he turned to save himself for the North and South Amateur Championship which will start Wednesday. If he had decided to play in the open he would have been forced to play thirty-six holes of competitive golf today and Tuesday and then qualify Wednesday in the Amateur Championship.

Hagen Highest in Pool Auction

Hagen held the highest figure in the largest pool auction; Barnes brought the second, with Brady in third place.

Leo Diegel and Emmet French were other favorites. Perry Adair arrived today and will start in the amateur championship.

Walter Hagen paired with Francis Ouimet against Tom Tellier and George McLean, and the match finished all even. The open champion, as usual, showed that in a pinch he has the proper stuff. He had a nine-foot put on the home green to square the match and he sank it. He and Tellier were 73, Ouimet was 74 and McLean 76. Charles Lorme of the Inverness Club arrived today and started in the tournament. The drawing for a number of the leading players follows:

Charles Hoffner and Leo Diegel, C. L. Mothersele and George McLean, Jack Dowling and Clarence Hackney, Willie Ogg and Dave Spittall, George Wetherspoon and Fred McLeod, J. Douglas Edgar and Wilfred Reid, Mike Brady and Lou Tellier, Emmet French and Sam Graham, Tom Boyd and Pat Doyle, Tom Maclamara and Albert Murray, Alex Ross and Abe Chisholm, Walter Howe and Charles Reinis, Walter Hagen and Albert Walker, Gil Nichols and J. B. Standish, Jim Barnes and Tom Kerrigan.

Holes Well Trapped on Course Three

The par and distance of the number three course over which the professionals played the first 36 holes today of the 72 holes competition for the North and South open golf championship follows:

Hole	OUT Yards	Par	Hole	IN Yards	Par
1	360	4	10	372	4
2	415	4	11	400	4
3	392	4	12	465	5
4	330	4	13	340	4
5	171	3	14	158	3
6	168	3	15	390	4
7	390	4	16	372	4
8	443	5	17	216	3
9	380	4	18	388	4
	Totals 3234	35		Totals 3129	36
	Grand Total				6363

The number three course is very sporty, and although the distances make the pars appear easy, the holes are so well trapped that well played second shots are required.

Bill Kennedy Enters B. A. A. Marathon

With the receipt of the entry blank of Bill Kennedy of the Morningside A. C., New York, the first of a veritable host of long-distance stars was entered in the twenty-fourth American Marathon run, conducted annually on April 19 by the Boston Athletic Association.

"Brickiayer Bill," as the Morningside athlete is known, was the winner of the 1917 American Marathon, and for many years has been a starling performer over the long-distance courses—in previous years having finished well up with the leader in the annual B. A. A. event.

The wrestling committee of the N. E. A. A. A. U. is assured of a large entry list for this event. Already a team of fourteen has been entered from Providence; assurances have been made of a team from Tufts, Harvard and M. I. T., with individual entries from Lynn and about Greater Boston, including many from the different posts of the American Legion.

The gymnasium at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A., where this event will be held, gives ample opportunity for two mats and a comfortable seating of the audience. Reserved seats went on sale at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. today.

In the last National championships held at Boston, Walker was beaten, the final bout by Willie Corbett of this city. Previously Walker had defeated both of the twins in intercity bouts held at the New York A. C.

More than fifty entries have already been received for the championships

SEES GOOD YEAR FOR BRAVES

Jennings Says Stallings Clan Is Much Harder to Beat Than Last Spring

Asheville, N. C., March 29.—After a day of rest passed in the railroad yards the Braves and Tigers have arrived at this Southern resort to stage the sixth act of the famous Hapgood tour. The latest jump was about 600 miles from Atlanta to here, which is some Spring record. It was a tough leap for the ball clubs as the railroad fares had to come out of the treasury, there being no grant at Camp Gordon because of the rain. The Braves made Bay, so to speak, while the rain pattered down, signing up a couple of pitchers, John Paul Jones and Jack Scott, after doing that President George W. Grant called his invasion of the South a success and entrained for Asheville.

According to Manager Hugh Jennings the Braves will have a mighty fine ball club this year if Chief George Stallings can produce any real pitching from his somewhat admitted flock of hurlers.

Jennings Praises 1920 Braves

"The Braves this year," quoth Hughie, "are far and away stronger than they were last Spring. Beating them then was not difficult after the first few games, but so far this Spring they have forced us to the limit and are getting better all the time.

"Even with Maranville out the team has rolled right along and appears to have better balance. Pick at second base is a great ball player, and Cruise acts like a regular hitter. I understand he was not well last season, but this year he appears set for a good season.

"It is easy to see that the team needs strengthening in the box and if the needed force is obtained there, then the Braves ought to at least hold their own and probably surprise some of the other contestants in the senior organization before the chill of late autumn begin to "bite."

Rookie Catcher Disappears

The headquarters of the tribe is somewhat concerned about the disappearance of recruit Catcher Al Wallin, who was sold to the Columbia club of the Sally League. He was furnished transportation by the Braves and has not shown up.

Young Dan Bradshaw has been put on the voluntarily retired list by the Braves as he has decided to go home and rest up his sore arm. He could not come to terms with the Spartanburg club and thought it better to hike home and let the wing take a vacation. He may come back to the big show in the propeller listens to reason.

MRS. WIGHTMAN BEATEN BY MISS HELEN BAKER

Berkeley, Cal., March 29.—Miss Helen Baker of San Francisco defeated Mrs. George Wightman of Brookline, Mass., national women's champion, 2—6, 6—1, 6—4, in the fifth and deciding match of women's indoor tennis.

College Oarsmen Get Away Saturday

The intercollegiate rowing season starts Saturday, when Yale meets Penn over the Henley course on the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia.

Joe Wright, the veteran oarsman from Canada, is coaching the students at Pennsylvania, which means the Red and Blue can be counted on to make a fine showing in every event it participates in this season.

Guy Nickalls, who returned to Yale only a short time ago after three years of service in the English army, has been driving his squad hard since he got on the job, and he, too, can be counted on to produce the goods.

LEGION POST RUN TO BE BIG EVENT

An event promising to stand out as one of the most prominent of the April nineteenth program of sports this year will be the 10-mile open handicap cross-country run to be held under the auspices of the Michael J. O'Connell Post 76, American Legion, of Jamaica Plain.

Marking the launching of the great $50,000 fund drive for a memorial building for the post, the event will be especially notable for the character and value of the prizes offered.

There will be five prizes and a time prize, a large sum having been already subscribed for their purchase, and no pains will spared to provide trophies well out of the ordinary.

It is announced that the race course will be that familiar to contestants in former cross-country events in the Jamaica Plain district in the past.

Entries will close Monday, April 12 with Arthur T. Gormley, No. 14 Creighton street, Jamaica Plain.

Added distinction will be given the race by the presence of General Edwards, who will officiate as starter.

"Even with Maranville out the team has rolled right along and appears to have better balance. Pick at second base is a great ball player, and Cruise acts like a regular hitter. I understand he was not well last season, but this year he appears set for a good season.

Plans are being made by the Michael J. Perkins Post, American Legion, of South Boston, to place a strong baseball team in the American Legion League the coming season.

SHORTSTOPS IN CLOSE RACE

Five National and Four American League Clubs Closely Bunched

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Dope on the shortstops shows the first four American League clubs and the first five National League teams rather more closely bunched than is usual.

Roger Peckinpaugh, who has come slowly, rounding out his work and improving with each season, has reached the top of the list now in the American League, while the youthful and brilliant Hollocher of the Cubs tops the National League.

That Hollocher ranks ahead of the great Bancroft, who has been the ranking shortstop of the circuit for years, is due not so much to the fact that Hollocher is improving and Bancroft is a bit past the top of his game, as it is to the fact that one is with a strong team which promises to be a contender, the other with an almost hopeless tail ender. Further, Bancroft must hit against the wonderful pitching staff of the Cubs, while Hollocher fattens up on the weaker offerings of the Phil twirlers in twenty-two games.

Chapman, the Cleveland veteran, is practically tied with Peckinpaugh for the honors of the American League. Last season Chapman suffered much from bad feet and legs caused during his service in the army, and his work was considerably impaired. It was late in the season before he really steadied to the task and showed the most brilliant form of his career.

It seems rather peculiar to see Donie Bush listed below two men in his own circuit, but Bush's supremacy in the past has been due largely to his great gift in securing bases on balls, and he has fallen off steadily in this respect, so that he loses points in attacking power, and already has sloughed off some in his fielding. But Bush is not done yet, not by a whole lot, as is shown by the fact that the slope still rates him ahead of Everett Scott, who has dropped back considerably probably due to the break of the Red Sox last year.

Scott Affected by Work of Team

Scott may be expected to improve in his work directly in ratio to the improvement in the Boston team as a pennant race. He is a great player, and a winning player, but seems prone to fall into careless habits when the team is losing, a bad habit for one with years of baseball behind him.

Rabbit Maranville, who with a winning team would rank up at the top, did not show well the season in some details of the game. His work at the bat dropped him into third place in his league, just one point ahead of the veteran Fielder Jones, and he would have been forced to use a combination, so that the New York figures would be safe, were it not for his understudy. McGraw has collected a wonderful array of youthful talent and it seems certain that Fletcher will not be able to go the entire season, and that either one of the youngsters will sub for him in a large number of games.

The World's champion Reds rank pretty far down among the shortstops of the National, and at that the figures indicate that they have more position strength at short than they did last Spring.

Dodger Hurlers Worth Some $210,000

Jacksonville, Fla., March 29.—Every time one of the seven Brooklyn Superba pitching aces starts a ball game, exactly $30,000 worth of human chattel gets into action. In other words, the pitching staff of the Brooklyn team is valued, in the aggregate, at $210,000. The other four twirlers under contract may be considered as representing the war tax.

These are figures given out by Wilbert Robinson anent the report that Manager George Stallings of the Boston Braves had offered one of his outfielders and another player, presumably Hank Gowdy, for either Ed Pfeffer or Burleigh Grimes.

CLASSY BATTLES ON THE CARDS

Eagan-O'Dowd Melee at the Triple A Is Premier Local Attraction

Several important flatle battles are on the schedule to take place at the various boxing clubs hereabouts during the coming week, with the Mike O'Dowd-Joe Eagan championship middleweight contest, at the Armory A. A., Mechanics Building, Tuesday night, as the stellar event.

O'Dowd, since becoming champion, has proven himself to be one of the most consistent performers in the ring, meeting all comers within hailing distance of the required weight, and always giving a good account of himself.

In Eagan he faces one of the few men who have managed to gain the much coveted decision over him. Joe managed to grab off the honor several months before Mike won the crown and is again primed to show that the holder that he still possess the speed, punch and general ability that made him a winner when they met last.

Up to Eagan to Be at His Best

Joe had better be in fighting shape as Mike with his two years of training in the Army behind him, never was punching any harder or showing more speed than now.

K. O. Muggsy Wood was to meet Johnny Vero of Chelsea in the main bout at the Scenic Temple tonight, has called off the battle owing to a bad cold.

Paul Doyle, one of New England's best lightweights in the Welterweight class, will swap punches with Johnny Thompson at the Casino A. A. to-night, and from all signs appearances the shifty Paul will be forced to extend himself to win over the Brooklyn boy, who has given a good account of himself in the Big City.

Adair Posts $1,000 Forfeit to Meet Kloby

A good prelim card has been arranged to precede the Doyle-Thompson card and Lynn fans are looking forward to a good show.

Barney Adair, the Irish battler, has posted $1,000 with the Boston American to bind a match with Jack Kloby of Lawrence and is willing to wage punches with the much talked of Yankee Division fighter as soon as possible. Adair, who is well known to local fans claims he has constantly tried to get the Lawrence fighter within the ring arena for over a year so that he might show him a few of the finer points of the game.

If Kloby cannot yet summon enough courage to come to bat, Barney is ready to accommodate any of the other popular welters at any time.

Chick West of Holyoke and Paddy Flynn of Everett will entertain the members of the Union Square A. C. in Somerville tonight in what should be a fast eathe-mund setto. Larry Connor, who is handling the fortunes of the club, has brought this pair together for this show, and the fans are sure to see a couple of fast, heavy hitting. A good preliminary bout has been arranged and the new club should get away to a good start.

Hussawe to Wrestle

Yussif Isiinas Yousoff, Hussawe, well and favorably known in this city, will wrestle Asufras Guyginis, entirely unknown, in Horticultural Hall, Worcester, Thursday night.

SOX OUTFIELD IS STILL PROBLEM

Marsans Sent Back to Yanks, Fletcher Put Out of Game, Which Giants Win

By JACK CONWAY

Mobile, Ala., March 29.—The Red Sox and Giants shifted their scenery and bat bags to this man's town today and continued their merry battle for baseball supremacy south of the Mason and Dixon line. Incidentally, the McGraw men had the best of the battle by four games to three when the athletes ate their first meal here.

Empire Dick Nallin of the American League, who is working in the series with Bill Klem of the National League, has opened the season in grand form; without any flag-raising or speech-making he hopped into the national pastime and grabbed a decision over Captain Arthur Fletcher of the Giants. Fletcher has been up today as a flock of teamsters during a jam since the series got under way. His chief desire has been to have the game played under the Fletcher code, which is to the effect that a rule is a good one when it favors the Giants and nothing else, and he sets against the best interests of the New York club.

Got Acquainted With Nallin

Fletcher has tried to have it changed. Bill Brennan, who was one of the umpires until Nallin burst into the picture, permitted Fletcher to have his way in all things like the pelted child. The New York captain apparently came to believe the series was merely for his benefit and that all umpires must bow to his wishes, but he didn't know Nallin and he naturally continued his domineering methods in the Sunday game at New Orleans. The result was the score was tied. All day Fletcher had been muscling himself conspicuously in the field by objecting to Nallin's decisions on balls and strikes and in the first inning, at the end of the ninth, but it was only one of several showers which the Giants were to receive. When Nallin didn't call the pastime, Fletcher attempted to ride rough shod over the umpire, but he up against a stone wall after telling Fletcher what he thought of his opinion Vein of Fletcher Nallin ordered him out of the game.

Of course, Fletcher said he wouldn't get out of the game, wasn't he the captain of the Giants, wasn't it also an unheard of thing for an umpire to order a player out of a Spring game, so Fletcher argued and argued, but Nallin wouldn't give in and McGraw finally sent Secking to bat for the Giants' captain.

Giants Win Out in Tenth Inning

As for the ball game at New Orleans, the Giants won, 3 to 4, in ten innings. Burns, Young and Kelly made the necessary hits in the final session. The Giants scored four of their runs off Sam Jones and the winning tally when Ben Kaufman hit Kloby of Lawrence and is willing to wage punches with the much talked of Yankee Division fighter as soon as possible. Adair, who is well known to local fans claims he has constantly tried to get the Lawrence fighter within the ring arena for over a year so that he might show him a few of the finer points of the game.

If Kloby cannot yet summon enough courage to come to bat, Barney is ready to accommodate any of the other popular welters at any time.

Hendryx Adds Another Hit to Tenth Inning

Hendryx, Foster and Hiller were the batting heroes for Stanton-Hooper golf's trifle and single. Hendryx a double and single, Foster a brace of doubles, while Hiller connected for a few clouting singles. Hiller played shortstop in the absence of Scott, who is suffering from a sore hand, one of his fingers. The recruit played a faultless fielding game and batted by the stick, he is virtually sure of a berth with the Sox.

Hiller and Devine look to be the best of the Sox recruits. Maranas, the Cuban outfielder, has been sent back to Lynn. He was with the Sox on trial, but failed to show any batting ability. The outfield still a Sox problem, with Hooper being the only player sure to be playing regularly for Boston by the end of the Fourth of July is celebrated.

THE YOUNG DIANA

An Experiment of the Future

Story of Extraordinary Mystery, in Which the Heroine Holds Key to Youth and Beauty

By MARIE CORELLI

What Has Gone Before

Diana is the spinster daughter of well-to-do commonplace parents. The May family resides at Rose Lea, an estate on the coast of Devon. She overhears her parents discussing her age and declaring that she is in the way. She goes bathing and fails to appear for breakfast. Her clothes are found neatly folded near the water's edge. While there is mourning at Rose Lea, Diana is talking things over with her friend, Sophy Lansing, in London. She goes to Geneva to answer a strange advertisement of a doctor for a woman of mature years.

LEFT alone for several minutes, she moved about half timidly, half boldly, looking here and there—at the great globes, celestial and terrestrial, which occupied one corner—at the long telescope on its stand ready for use and pointed out to the heavens—and especially at a curious instrument of fine steel set on a block of crystal, which swung slowly up and down incessantly, striking off an infinitesimal spark of fire as it moved.

"Some clock-work thing," she said half aloud. "But where is its mechanism?"

"Ah, where!" echoed a deep, rather pleasant voice close at her ear. "That, as Hamlet remarked, is the question!"

She started and turned quickly with a flush of color mounting to her brows—a man of slight build and medium height stood beside her.

"You are Dr. Dimitrius?" she said.

He smiled. "Even so! I am he! And you——?"

Not Alarming

Swiftly she glanced him over. He was not at all an alarming, weird, or extraordinary-looking personage. Young?—yes, surely young for a man—not above forty; and very personable, if intelligent features, fine eyes and a good figure can make a man agreeable to outward view. And yet there was something about him more than mere appearance—she could not tell what it was, and just then she had no time to consider. She rushed at once into the business of her errand.

"My name is May,—Diana May," she said, conscious of nervousness in speaking, but mastering herself by degrees. "I have come from England in answer to your advertisement. I am interested—very deeply interested—in matters of modern science, and I have gained some little knowledge through a good deal of personal, though quite unguided study. I am most anxious to be useful—and I am not afraid to take any risks——"

She broke off, a little confused under the steady scrutiny of Dr. Dimitrius's eyes. He placed an easy chair by the nearest window. "Pray sit down!" he said, with a courteous gesture,—then, as she obeyed: "You have walked here from Geneva?"

"Yes."

"When did you arrive from England?"

"Two days ago."

"Have you stated to anyone the object of your journey?"

"Only to one person—an intimate woman friend who lent me the money for my travelling expenses."

"I see!" And Dimitrius smiled benevolently. "You have not explained yourself or your intentions to any good Genevese hotel proprietor?"

She looked up in quick surprise. "No, indeed!"

Talks With Doctor

"Wise woman!" Here Dimitrius drew up a chair opposite to her and sat down. "My experience has occasionally shown me that lone ladies arriving in a strange town and strange hotel, throw themselves, so to speak, on the bosom of the bookkeeper or the landlady, and to her impart their whole business. It is a mistake!—an error of confiding innocence—but it is often made. You have not made it—and that is well! You have never married?"

Diana colored—then answered with gentleness.

"No. I am what is called a spinster—an old maid."

"The first is by far the prettiest name," said Dimitrius. "It evokes a charming vision of olden time when women sat at their spinning wheels, each one waiting for Faust, a la Marguerite, unaware of the Devil behind him. 'Old maid' is a coarse Enblish term—there are coarse English terms! and much as I adore England and the English, I entirely disapprove of their 'horse-play' on women! No doubt you know what I mean?"

"I think I do," replied Diana, slowly. "It is that when a woman is neither a man's bound slave nor his purchased toy, she is turned into a jest."

"Precisely! You have expressed it perfectly!" and his keen eyes flashed over her comprehensively. "But let us keep to business. You are a spinster, and I presume you are, in the terms of my advertisement, 'alone in the world, without claims on your time or your affections.' Is that so?"

Quietly she answered:

"That is so."

"Now you will remember I asked for a 'courageous and determined woman of mature years.' You do not look very 'mature'——"

"I am past forty," said Diana.

A frank but unnecessary admission," he answered, smiling. "You should never admit to more years than your appearance gives you. However, I am glad you told me, as it better suits my purpose. And you consider yourself 'courageous and determined'?"

Gazed at Him

She looked at him straightly.

"I think I am—I hope I am," she said. "I have had many disillusions and have lost all I once hoped to win; so that I can honestly say even death would not matter to me, as I have nothing to live for. Except the love of Nature and its beauty——"

"And its wisdom and mastery of all things," finished Dimitrius. "And to feel that unless we match its wisdom with our will to be instructed, and its mastery with our obedience and worship, we 'shall surely die'!"

His eyes flashed upon her with a curious expression, and just for a passing moment she felt a little afraid of him. He went on, speaking with deliberate emphasis:

"Yes—if you are indeed a student of Nature, you surely know that! And you know also that the greatest, deepest, most amazing and most enlightening discoveries made in science during the last thirty years or so are merely the result of cautious and sometimes casual probing of one or two of this vast Nature's smaller cells of avtice intelligence. We have done something—but how much remains to do!"

He paused—and Diana gazed at him questiongly. He smiled as he met her eager and interested look.

"We shall have plenty of time to talk of these matters," he said—"if I decide that you can be useful to me. What languages do you know besides your own?"

"French, Italian and a little Russian," she answered. "The two first quite fluently—Russian I have studied only quite lately—and I find it rather difficult——"

For One Year

"Being a Russian myself I can perhaps make it easy for you," said Dimitrius, kindly. "To study such a language without a teacher shows considerable ambition and energy on your part."

She flushed a little at the mere suggestion of praise and sat silent.

"I presume you have quite understood, Miss May," he presently resumed, in a more formal tone, "that I require the services of an assistant for one year at least—possibly two years. If I engage you, you must sign an agreement with me to that effect. Another very special point is that of confidence. Nothing that you do, see, or hear while working under my instructions is ever to pass your lips. You must maintain the most inviolable secrecy, and when once you are in this house you must neither write letters nor receive them. If you are, as I suggested in my advertisement, 'alone in the world, without any claims on your time or your affections,' you will not find this a hardship. My experiments in chemistry may or may not give such results as I hope for, but while I am engaged upon them I want no imitative bunglers attempting to get on the same line. Therefore I will run no risks of even the smallest hint escaping as to the nature of my work."

Diana bent her head in assent.

"I understand," she said—"And I am quite willing to agree to your rules. I should only wish to write one letter, and that I can do from the hotel—just to return the money my friend lent me for my expenses. And I should ask you to advance me that sum out of whatever salary you offer. Then I need give no further account of myself. Sophy—that is my friend—would write to acknowledge receipt of the money, and then our correspondence would end."

"This would not vex or worry you?" inquired Dimitrius.

She smiled. "I am past being vexed or worried at anything!" she said. "Life is just a mere 'going on' for me now, with thankfulness to find even a moment of interest in it as I go!"

Paced the Floor

Dimitrius rose from his chair and walked up and down, his hands clasped behind his back. She watched him in fascinated attention, with something of suspense and fear lest after all he should decide against her. She noted the supple poise of his athletic figure, clad in a well-cut, easy Summer suit of white flannels—his dark, compact head, carried with a certain expression of haughtiness, and last, but not least, his hands, which in their present careless attitude nevertheless expressed both power and refinement.

Suddenly he wheeled sharply round and stood, facing her.

"I think you will do," he said—and her heart gave a quick throb of relief which, unconsciously to herself, suffused her pale face with a flush of happiness—"I think I shall find in you obedience, care and loyalty. But there is yet an important point to consider—do you, in turn, think you can put up with me? I am very masterful, not to say obstinate; I will have no 'scamp' work—I am often very impatient, and I can be extremely disagreeable. You must take all this well into your consideration, for I am perfectly honest with you when I say I am not easy to serve. And remember!"—here he drew a few steps closer to her and looked her full in the eyes—"the experiments on which I am engaged are highly dangerous—and, as I stated in my advertisement, you must not be 'afraid to take risks'—for if you agree to assist me in the testing of certain problems in chemistry, it may cost you your very life!"

She smiled.

A Good Nerve

"It's very kind of you to prepare me for all the difficulties and dangers of my way," she said. "And I thank you! But I have no fear. There is really nothing to be afraid of—one can but die once. If you will take me, I'll do my faithful best to obey your instructions in every particular, and so far as is humanly possible, you shall have nothing to complain of."

He still bent his eyes searchingly upon her.

"You have a good nerve?"

"I think so."

"You must be sure of that! My laboratory is not a place for hesitations, qualms or terrors," he said. "The most amazing manifestations occur there sometimes——"

"I have said I am not afraid," interrupted Diana, with a touch of pride. "If you doubt my word, let me go—but if you are disposed to engage me, please accept me at my own valuation."

He laughed, and his face lightened with kindliness and humor.

"I like that!" he said. "I see you have some spirit! Good! Now, to business. I have made up my mind that you will suit me—and you have also apparently made up your mind that I shall suit you. Very well. Your salary with me will be a thousand a year——"

Diana uttered a little cry.

"A thou—a thousand a year!" she ejaculated. "Oh, you mean a thousand francs?"

"No, I don't. I mean a thousand good British pounds sterling—the risks you will run in working with me are quite worth that.

Safe Fat Reduction

Reduce, reduce, reduce, is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim, is the cry of fashion and society. Humoresque

Screen Version Novelized by Jane McLean

Fannie Hurst's Story in a Tense Film Drama Featuring Alma Rubens

Watch for It in Motion Pictures

"Humoresque" is a Cosmopolitan production. Scenario by Frances Marion, direction of Frank Borzage. Presented by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as a Paramount-Artcraft picture.

BEFORE, his going had seemed far away, now it was upon them. Now they could appreciate the heartaches of the thousands of parents whose boys had already gone and to whom every day was a day of waiting horror.

But Mrs. Kantor smiled; she would ask Gina to supper on the last day and say nothing about it to Leon. Her plotting almost came to nothing. His last minutes he had planned to spend with the girl to whom he had made the promise not to speak of love again till after the war. His mother watched him take his cap before the supper hour.

"Leon, where are you going?"

"I'm going to say good-bye to Gina Berg, mama," he stood alittle flushed, a little conscious.

"Here you are, my dear," was her smiling answer and following the direction of her glance he saw Miss Berg entering by the door through which he was expecting to depart.

"I asked her to come in to cheer us up," said Mama Kantor, judiciously slipping out of the way after a formal handshake.

"So you're going, Leon—really going."

He nodded. "You think it's all right?"

"It's the only thing you could do, the right thing."

"But when the war's over you'll remember I'll have something to say to you."

"To me?" she laughed a forced laugh. "Oh, we'll have lots to say to each other."

"And now you're getting so well known—you'll not forget me, will you?"

"I think not." They moved toward the windows and stood there looking out at the stream of vehicles passing up and down the avenue.

"I'm going with an easy conscience," said the young man. "They've nothing to fear here."

"It's fine!" said Gina.

"You wouldn't have thought much of me if I hadn't gone, would you?" he asked.

"Oh, no—I knew you'd go."

"You didn't say so."

"No, but I knew you would."

Gina's Faith

Gina's faith in him was the great lodestar in Leon's life from that day on. It even served him well when he said goodby to her, and an hour later when he faced the assembled family in the big library ready to depart.

Mama Kantor's eyes were eloquent with suffering, but a smile was on her lips, and Abrahm, accepting the inevitable, had taken the precautions to have the car waiting. He was going to see Leon board the ferry for Hoboken and the mysterious transport.

The others stood about in attitudes a little resentful, but silent, and as their gifted brother kissed them, perhaps for the last time, they grasped the cruel truth that war spares neither rich nor poor and that human nature is pretty much the same in Fifth avenue and Allen street.

Mama Kanton clung to Leon with the despairing hold of one about to be robbed of all she holds dearest in the world.

"You should hurry up," said Abrahm, affecting to take no notice of this agitation on Sarah's part. Leon broke away and with his father passed out of the door. It closed and Mrs. Kantor, weeping as though death had already laid his heavy hand on her darling, fell into a chair and sobbed out her misery.

Abrahm was almost silent during the drive to the water front. "It should be better, Leon, Mama, she didn't come," he volunteered after the car had started.

"Poor Mama," the son answered, "she's been through a good deal."

"You would be back before she knows it," his father ventured, hopefully.

"You talk to her that way," Leon said earnestly, "don't let her think anything could happen—I'm taking the chances every other soldier takes, but you can make it easier for her, papa."

"I hear that many of them fellers don't get a scratch," said Abrahm hopefully, "the paper said so."

Abrahm Says Goodby

They shook hands at parting and Leon kissed his father dutifully. Abrahm kept up his courage to the last; no one would have suspected that he was seeing his boy off to the war.

When he re-entered the car he used his handkerchief freely. He was proud of Leon. "I'll make it up to Mama," he assured himself, and his eyes beamed with unselfishness. Leon's going had worked a marvel in more ways than one.

Mrs. Kantor greeted him as though nothing had happened.

"Well, he's gone," said Abrahm, putting an arm about his wife's ample waist, "but he'll be coming back—I ask you—it's like a concert trip."

"You've been a good husband to me, Abrahm," said Mrs. Kantor, irrelevantly appreciating his efforts to lighten the load that was heavy at her heart; "but we shouldn't be making sorry over Leon, you understand?"

And yet at breakfast the next day there were eager eyes looking for the sailing of the transport, whose departure was so much of a mystery. Esther was off early to the Red Cross work rooms to help make bandages.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 10c and 25c.

A Woman's Verdict

Tells of Suffering Greatly With Kidney and Bladder Trouble and How Balmwort Brought Relief

Her Letter Well Worth Reading

Mrs. Nellie McGinn, 609 East 138th street, New York City, writes:

"For the last year I had suffered greatly from Kidney and Bladder trouble, distressing pain in the back and hips, with rheumatic twinges and frequent severe headache, accompanied by nervousness, chills, and fever; also a frequent desire to eliminate, a smarting, burning sensation, with pain in the region of the bladder. I would frequently have to arise at night, my sleep being disturbed by the pressure and inflammation in bladder. Beginning the use of Balmwort Tablets I noticed almost instant relief, and continuing to use them I am now totally well and relieved of all pain and distress from which I suffered. I am glad to recommend Balmwort Tablets as a reliable, beneficial medicine and trust others may find relief and freedom from pain and distress as I did, etc."

The above letter is a true statement and is on file in our offices. Balmwort Tablets bring relief when other medicine has failed. Sold by leading druggists, $1.00 per tube.—Advertisement.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

LILLIAN

LILLIAN is one of the charming flower names which are so popular in the English language. Like all flower names, it is somewhat difficult to trace, but it is known that the name was a favorite with Italian ladies as early as the fourteenth century, because of its romantic allusion.

Copyright by Harris & Ewing

Curiously enough, Lillian is not derived from lily, as is popularly supposed, though it is called by etymologists a "flower name." The consensus of opinion seems to be that it has the same origin as Cecelia, though the connection seems a trifle difficult to perceive. However, Coeler Vivenna, an Etruscan general, who named the Coelian hill and gens, is the root from which a number of names containing the syllable "lia" is derived.

There was a Liliola Gonzaga in Italy in 1340, and she is considered the first instance of the name. Lilias was another form, which is still in popular use. Lilias Ruthven appears in Scotland in 1557. She was probably so called from the old romantic poem of Roswel and Lillian, which was a great favorite in Scotland. The Lillian of this ballad is the Queen of Naples.

The English adopted the name as it stood, and claim that it comes from lily, using it as such. The Scotch have always preferred Lilias or Lillias, but America adopted both Lilias and Lillian.

Tennyson is responsible for the picture of Lillian as a charming thistle-down sort of maid:

"Airy, fairy Lillian,
Flitting fairy Lillian,
When I ask her if she loves me,
Clasps her tiny hands above me,
Laughing all she can;
She'll not tell me if she loves me,
Cruel little Lillian.

"So innocent arch, so cunning simple,
From beneath her gathered wimple,
Glancing with black-beaded eyes,
Till the lightning laughters dimple
The baby-roses in her cheeks;
Then away she flies."

Lillian's jewel is the lovely lapis lazuli, the Oriental gem as blue as the sea with tiny golden flecks like bits of sunshine. It has the power to cure melancholy and is also believed to have medicinal value in allaying intermittent fever. To dream of it means faithful love. Lillian's flower is most fittingly the morning glory, the fairy bloom which scarcely survives the dew that vanishes before the sun's rays. Her lucky day is Thursday, and 2 is her mystic number.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

"IF Val will wait for late dinner, she and Anne might be together," suggested Jim, turning to me for the acquiescence he didn't guess I was loath to give. In a second I knew I was saved, for he went on, evidently in reply to what Lane Cosby had said, "Of course, its all right if Val has made other plans. Anne has plenty of friends at the canteen. She'll run over to the Clinsarge with them as per usual."

This fitted in like the pieces of a picture puzzle with what happened when I got to the canteen a bit later than usual. Carlotta Sturges hurried over balancing a loaded tray and flung a sentence or two at me:

"That splendid Mr. Norreys was in. Left this envelope for you. I know that it is all right, but I'll respect Santa Claus' incognito and keep mum. He's coming round at eight-thirty to take us to dinner."

The envelope contained Tony's anonymous contribution for the feeding of needy lads. Since Betty's absence he has been in the habit of bringing it to me himself. Our friendship has come to be a very real thing. It is as sane and simple, as kindly and understanding as Betty's own friendship—and has come to be part of my life, like my fondness for Betty's husband or my respect for Father Andrew's wisdom. Something in Tony's big simplicity and honesty reminds me of Father Andrew. For all that he is a cultured English aristocrat, Tony has much in common with my dear simple old step-father—product of village and farm.

And yet Jim dislikes Tony, resents him, was once jealous of him. The beginning of my greatest estrangement from my boy comes because I would not permit Jim to "forbid" me to be friends with Anthony Norreys.

Now Jim's love is mine again, mine more completely and gloriously than ever it has been before. Dared I gamble with that? I asked myself.

If I dined with Tony and Carlotta—what then?

Must I give up Anthony Norreys' friendship?

Whenever there was a slack moment in the day's work at the Canteen this problem reared its head to confront me. And sometimes it trailed its way through my orders and led me to confuse ham and eggs with fresh peach ice cream.

Jim disapproves of Tony. Dislikes him. This fact stands adamant. I can't dodge it or disprove it. There it is and no getting around it.

On the other hand I like Tony. Like and admire him. And he gives me a friendship as loyal and unswerving as Terry's—to which I was always welcome, for Jim approves. Now I know that friendship is a thing made up of understanding and respect and congeniality—and fair play. It isn't a thing to use and enjoy for a while and then bundle up in old newspapers like faded flowers on their way to the ashcan.

"Anne Harrison," I said firmly to myself, "Tony's friendship is just as real now when you don't need it as it was in the days when you—and your Jim—might have starved without it. And if you don't treat a big thing like friendship decently and with respect, then you haven't a square attitude toward any of your blessings or responsibilities. You have definite obligations toward Tony Norreys. His faith in you isn't a—scrap of paper. You aren't a Hun, my girl."

This seemed to settle the question of what I would do with Tony's loyal liking now that I had won it, and it also presupposed that I'd keep the engagement with him which Carlotta had made for me.

I knew that what I did was right—Right with a capital "R." But I wonder how I am going to make Jim see it—or when I am going to venture to try.

JUST THINK OF CADOMENE

When You Find You Are Losing Out in the Game of Life

Worn-Out, Nervous Men and Weak, Bloodless, Anaemic Women Have Found New Strength and Vigor in Taking Cadomene Tablets.

A well-known writer on physical culture says: "You cannot run a high-powered engine without fuel. You cannot get much speed without plenty of steam. You cannot get up much steam without plenty of coal and a perfectly working furnace (body). Similarly, in your own case, the internal 'works' must be sound and working properly."

That tired feeling—do you know what it means? It means that digestion and nutrition are lacking. It means that your blood and nerves are impoverished. It means that slow but sure decline in your vitality will surely ensue and real sickness will overtake you, unless you bestir yourself in overcoming the weakness of the organs responsible. This is not written to frighten. In reality it expresses logical facts. Cadomene Tablets, the favorite prescription of a great physician, are made, and sold by druggists for people who need help for nature's forces, owing to ignorance, neglect or dissipation of one kind or another. Every package is guaranteed to please or money back.—Advertisement.

Rheumatism Relief--25c.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), Are Helping Thousands Who Tried Expensive Things Without Result. It's Guaranteed.

There are three vital processes of human existence,—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of waste.

Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to derive full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism,—due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons,—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body.

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain things? A 25c. box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days,—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing.

Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the system. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctors, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Just try it. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

STUTZ SLUMPS 18 POINTS

Chandler Is the Motor Feature, Selling at a New Record High

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks ruled strong in New York at noon, but prices were below the forenoon highest, as well as above the lowest level. A feature of early trading was the slump of Stutz Motor. At its lowest it was off eighteen points. General Motor made a partial recovery. Chandler was up nearly eight points at its best. Trading was of moderate volume, first hour morning sales totalling less than 450,000 shares. Call money renewed at 8 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were lower at the opening, demand sterling being off 2 cents, at $3.91¼, while francs were quoted at 14.52 and lire at 19.92.

Marks sold at .0134, compared with .0136 on Saturday. Largest gains at noon were shown by Car Foundry, Atlantic Gulf, American Sugar, Cuba Cane, Punta Alegre, Royal Dutch, Sinclair, Texas Co, and Reading. They were up from one to more than three points.

Among weakest issues were Sumatra, Baldwin, Crucible and Mexican Petroleum. At the end of the morning they were off from one to more than three.

REACTED AFTER OPENING.

There was enough demand for stocks at the opening to send prices up but the advance was short lived and the reaction which followed left the list irregular. Both advances and declines averaged small, but early losses exceeded gains as a rule. Chandler was the strongest issue at the start, opening with a three-point gain and then selling at a new record high. Trading was brisk at the start, over-Sunday buying from East and West being of some consequence. Covering continued, although bears are far from convinced that the recent upward course of prices is going to continue.

TRADERS WERE NERVOUS.

An undercurrent of nervousness was evident. After wavering for awhile stocks advanced again and the market was strong at the end of an hour. Chandler was the only motor to show pronounced strength. Stutz was weak, receding sixteen points in an hour. General Motors gained a couple points before sagging six. Steels were under pressure. Crucible falling the farthest. Baldwin was a weak equipment and Car & Foundry a strong one. Among pronounced gains was that by Atlantic Gulf. Oils started strong and were mixed as to changes later. Mexican Petroleum led for gains and Sinclair in activity at the outset.

MONEY THE MAIN FACTOR.

It is generally conceded that the market trend will be determined chiefly by the money situation. The advance of oils, steels and many other issues in the face of a high rate gives support to the theory that the public is eager to speculate in securities if operations can be financed. Increased surplus reported by New York banks on Saturday added to bull confidence. It was strengthened also by investment buying.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank's ratio of reserves to liabilities increased in a week from 38.8 per cent. to 39.1 per cent., and gold reserves increased $27,309,536 to a total of $504,688,836. The gain was largely the result of increased rediscounting with other reserve banks and the enlargement of credit through the gold settlement fund. It was stated by J. P. Morgan & Co. that the gold which arrived last week on the Lapland amounted to $9,300,000. The showing of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks as a whole in regard to reserve and liabilities was not so favorable as that of the New York institution, the ratio for the system being 42.7 per cent., as compared with 43.5 a week before. Boston's ratio was 44.9, compared with 52.2.

Ranier Trucks in Many Lands

Motor trucks made by the Ranier Motor Corporation have a big foreign field, having a present market in more than twenty foreign countries. The domestic demand is greater than the supply. President W. Baker of the Chatham and Phoenix National Bank and John Nickerson, Jr., investment banker. Earnings for the first three months of this year, with March estimated, are expected to show for common stock, after preferred dividends, the equivalent of $18 a share.

OPTIMISM FAST DEVELOPING

High Gasoline Price Will Not Hamper Automobile Industry

By BROADAN WALL.

New York, March 29.—Public announcement of the shipment of 4,000,000 pounds of British gold to New York combined with the secret shipment of a larger amount than that to Canada last week will make a material difference in the credit situation of the United States.

This gold is coming to make up purchase of Anglo-French bonds that have been made in the open market for the account of the British and French governments. The bonds are not due until October, but it has been found good business to purchase them now. Probably by the time they mature there will be but a small amount left to take care of. The British government is forehanded in this, as it is in everything it does internationally.

The spirit of optimism is developing rapidly in America and only the repressive attitude of the government has kept it from making a great exhibition.

The American people are beginning to think of developing business at home. Before the war less than ten per cent. of our business was with foreigners. During the war most of our business was abroad. The home business was neglected.

The automobile industry is just getting started. The high price of gasoline will not interfere materially with the development. Copper is coming into its own again and the outlook for the next five years is unusually bright.

DENY COALITION OF REBELS IN MEXICO

Mexico City, March 29.—A report from San Antonio, Texas, that the Mexican rebel factions have formed a coalition against the government, was denied by the Ministry of War today.

New Cornelia Copper Co.'s net income for 1919, after taxes, depreciation and depletion, amounted to $17,246, compared with $2,527,808 profits for 1918.

The 1919 operating profits of the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Co. amounted to $9,465,394, as compared with $7,249,533 in 1918, $5,769,301 in 1917, $8,898,463 in 1916 and $6,592,324 in 1915.

The Centennial Copper Company's net loss for 1919 amounted to $96,295. It produced 1,365,148 pounds of copper at a cost of 24.64 cents a pound and received an average price of 18.84 cents a pound on what it delivered.

In Calumet & Arizona's annual report President Briggs said regarding the Gadsden Copper Co.: "Work at Gadsden failed to show mineral values, and, unless work planned at the end of the year is fruitful of results, operations will be discontinued."

It was stated by Lee, Higginson & Co. on Saturday that the issue of $25,000,000 Western Electric Co., Inc., five-year 7 per cent. convertible gold bonds was all sold Friday morning.

The United Drug Company has organized under the laws of Massachusetts the United Writing Paper Co., Inc., with an authorized capital of $11,000,000, consisting of 100,000 shares of preferred stock of $100 par and 10,000 shares of common. NOT ENOUGH TO MEET CURRENT DEMANDS

In discussing prevailing business conditions, the Mechanics and Metals National bank of New York says the distinctive feature of the situation continues to be an extraordinary shortage of goods.

"Even in their personal expenditures," it states, "people daily encounter the fact that not only are prices in all parts of the United States high, but that, more striking still, manufacturers are far behind their orders, so that goods, if obtainable at all, are only to be had with difficulty or after long delays. It is asserted that so long as this condition of under-production exist, there cannot be any let-up in the present pace of business. Depression will not come, it is said, until output has been so increased as to overtake demand and "over-production" sets in. But it is difficult to see how the maintenance of American prosperity is to depend upon our continuing to produce fewer goods than are wanted. "Over-production" cannot mean the existence of more goods than are desired; we cannot turn out too much wealth."

Asking More for Copper

At the end of the week important selling interests advanced their copper price for second quarter deliveries to 19 cents a pound. It is belived this rate will be general this week. A prominent producer says: "Should Europe take a large tonnage of copper at 20 cents or better it would show no more than a reasonable profit to the producers who have been burdened with heavy stocks for more than a year."

THE FIERCE FEUDAL WAR

In the Kentucky mountains, which have long been famed for feuds and moonshiners, no neighborhood is complete without an active feud. When the revenue officers appear, however, all local troubles are forgotten and all join against them, for every Kentucky mountaineer is a moonshiner.

In the First National picture, in which Anita Stewart is to be featured at the Tremont Temple next week, there is a realistic clash between the moonshiners and revenue officers. Men are shown hiding behind trees and stones, shooting at the slightest movement of leaf or bush, with a man tumbling from tree or cliff with appalling frequency.

'Coast' Nightingale a Boston Girl

BEATRICE NEAL,

Beatrice Neal, who sings so sweetly in "The Magic Melody," is advertised as a California girl, but the fact is that she is a Bostonian by birth. Miss Neal was born in this city, but was taken to California as a young girl.

Out there they call her "the Golden State Nightingale," and her career in the East is eagerly watched by the folks on the Pacific. She came to New York to do concerts but was heard by Martin Beck at a social gathering and "The Magic Melody" engagement resulted.

Measures That Would Cure Most of the Troubles and Tendencies Which Distress and Alarm Us Today

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

"Hiram Johnson as the Type of Candidate the Country Needs"

Candid reviewers of the political situation perceive and admit that the Republican party has great odds on electing its nominee for the presidency.

But the odds are not so great in its favor as to warrant its managers in proceeding upon the theory that they can elect anybody.

They cannot, for example, nominate a representative of the special interests and expect to cram such a nomination down the people's throats.

Neither can they nominate a man who represents English interests in the United States and get away with it.

The present is a time when party ties notoriously sit lightly, when factors of unusual unrest are in the public mind, when the magic of the past is far less potent than the problems that concern the future.

It would be most imprudent for a political organization enjoying an initial advantage to so far presume upon that advantage as to offer insult to the progressive patriotism of the times.

While reactionary influences are strong in the higher circles of the Republican party, the voters in that party, upon the whole, are liberal minded. They cannot be herded or delivered. They have not forgotten 1912.

Instead, then, of striving to bring about the nomination of a favorite of the trusts, or a darling of foreign intriguers, inevitably hazarding a revolt, the managers of Republican politics, if they were wise, would perceive the timeliness of giving support to the candidacy or a real progressive.

Such a man as Hiram Johnson, for instance.

Consider the points of appeal which his candidacy offers to citizens who want nothing else than honest service in the White House.

He has definite convictions and the courage of them.

He is backed by no special interests and, if elected, none could use him.

He is progressive, but not rashly radical; his record as Governor of California was cleancut in definite fulfilment of pledges to the people—the most efficient record of executive progress made by any public official in our time.

But though it kicked crooked alliances between politics and business out of the government of California, it did not bring harm; it brought benefit to clean politics and to honest business.

Then see how true has been his course as a Senator—true to his beliefs, true to his conception of what is best for the common good.

At the instant that the peace treaty was revealed as a threat of continuous entanglement of our dollars and our boys in the Old World's vicious intrigues, completely reversing the traditions of our government and the advice of its founders, under which we had enjoyed the greatest continuous prosperity ever experienced by a nation, without waiting to bend ear to the ground or to reckon the political cost, he fearlessly declared against it, and from that attitude never wavered.

He is no man's man. He carries his sovereignty under his own hat.

Now one would think that a candidate of that calibre, able, clean, unafraid, liberal but practical, zealous only for the general welfare, not cheap, evasive, delphic or tricky, and with the advantage of proved competence as an administrator and law-maker, would make a profound appeal to ordinary citizens whose only interest in the nomination of a candidate for the presidency is to have a man nominated for whom they could vote with confidence.

As a matter of fact, Johnson's candidacy is making such an appeal, though it has behind it no grand army of paid boomers, no nation-wide organization of professional politicians under subsidy to put it across.

It is very satisfactory to the average American who is accustomed to do his own thinking.

But it is apparently not so satisfactory to the special interests and to the agents and organs at their command.

Unless the average American who has no selfish interest at stake shall take a little more pains to make manifest his preference, there is danger that the hired workers may prevail.

That would, we believe, be a misfortune—not to Johnson, but, in the first instance, to the Republican party, and most of all to the ordinary citizens who want nothing of government but competent, honest and faithful service.

The assumption of the reactionaries that they can elect whom they will is based on their belief that plain every day, average Americans are not going to take a hand in this year's politics except to ratify what the bosses dictate.

As we have said, this belief is risky.

It is a risk which no intelligent Republican politician, who is also an honest politician, ought to be willing to take if he has either respect for his party or loyalty to his country.

But it is a risk which the decent, patriotic body of Republican citizens ought to make sure will not be taken by their party, in which they hold the power of control, if they will just take the trouble to use it.

The candidacy of Hiram Johnson offers to them an excellent way of escape.

Return of Railroad Lobby Shown in Daylight Saving Fight

When the government stepped in and took over the railroads to win the war, one of the first official acts of Mr. McAdoo was to abolish the railroad lobby.

He recognized that such a step was necessary if the government were to continue to have the unbounded support of the people.

The order contained plain, direct language. It said:

It is ordered that the carriers' operating revenues shall not be expended—

For the payment of agents or other persons who are employed in any way to affect legislation.

For the employment of attorneys who are not actually engaged in the performance of necessary legal work for the company.

For any political purpose or to directly or indirectly influence the election of any person or an election affecting any public measure.

Perhaps no more beneficial operation has been performed in recent years than this removal of the loathsome ulcer, the poison from which had spread through the veins of the public bodies and gangrened representative government.

"Public scandal" seems inadequate to describe the stage which the influence of the railroad lobby had reached.

The citizen who paid merely a cursory attention to the news of the day was familiar with the wreckage of public morals which followed this trail of corruption and filth.

For two years the nation has enjoyed a respite from the vicious lobby. And here in Massachusetts, much progress was being made in the elimination of the lobby as a whole. The gas lobby seemed to have been rendered impotent by the Sliding Scale law; public control of two of the great street railway systems had destroyed the effectiveness which had been exercised in legislative halls by street railways under private ownership and management and on the frontier there stood the last of the public utility influences—the power companies which are attempting to seize the water-power of the Commonwealth.

But with the passing of public control of the railroads, their lobby is again beginning to exercise a power in the State.

We have seen the return and the growing influence of it on the daylight saving bill.

If the firm, decided sentiment of the vast majority of the people of this State were realized, daylight saving, with all its benefits, would have been in operation yesterday.

If our public officials legislate for the great majority of the people they represent, the daylight saving bill will be made a law without delay. Only the active influence of a very small minority can defeat it.

In five out of the past ten years in this State the Republican party went down to defeat because of its associations with lobby evils which were intolerable to the people. Wherever a party has yielded to that influence, that party has finally, but surely, paid for its apostasy in its own ruin.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

I'VE BEEN experimenting.
WITH OUR niece's child.
BECAUSE FOR years.
I'VE FIRMLY believed.
I KNOW more about children.
THAN MOST mothers.
AND, OF course, I don't.
BUT, ANYWAY.
I'VE PROVEN something.
AND THEY all admit it.
AND TO explain.
I'VE GOT to tell.
THIS BOY of ours.
HAD A very bad habit.
OF RUSHING outdoors.
IN RAIN or shine.
UNDRESSED OR dressed.
WHENEVER HE found.
AN OPEN door.
AND BECAUSE of that.
SCREEN DOORS were hooked.
AND OTHER doors locked.
TO HOLD him in.
WHEN HE should be in.
BUT IN spite of that.
HE ALWAYS knew.
WHEN A hook hung down.
OR A door wasn't locked.
AND HE'D get away.
AND SO I found him.
AND SO I took him in.
AND SAID I'd train him.
AND I started in.
AND UNHOOKED the screens.
AND UNLOCKED the doors.
AND LET him go.
AND THE first half day.
HE SURELY went some.
BUT AFTER a while.
WHEN HE realized.
THAT NOTHING was locked.
HIS ZEST for the game
SEEMED TO dwindle a lot.
AND ON the next day.
WE HAD a talk.
AND I tried to explain.
IT WAS very bad.
FOR LITTLE boys.
TO RUN out of doors.
WHEN THEY should stay in.
AND I knew he knew.
FOR HE stood very still.
AND LISTENED to me.
AND AFTER a while.
HIS LITTLE lips trembled.
AND, ANYWAY.
AT THE end of two days.
HE'D NEVER go out.
TILL WE'D take him out.
AND THEN he got so.
AT THE end of three days.
THAT WE had to beg him.
TO STAY outdoors.
OR THREATEN to lick him.
IF HE'D come in.
AND THEY'RE hooking the screens
TO KEEP him out.
AND I'VE got to train him.
TO STAY outdoors.
AND NOT rush in.
WHEN A door's left open.
AND WHATEVER he thinks.
I REALLY don't know.
FOR HE can't talk much.
BUT I'VE proven something.
WHATEVER IT is.

I THANK you.

City of High Prices

Editor Boston American:

Food prices are higher in Boston than anywhere else in the country. So are street car fares. Is there anything cheap in Boston besides the newspapers, which, fortunately, are of moderate price, and which, still more fortunately, as in the case of the American, continue to print facts that keep the public well informed concerning the abuses of profiteers?

Once upon a time there was enough public spirit in Boston to resent and even defeat such wholesale impositions; and this spirit was the root of the American Revolution. Of that spirit there seems to be little left. The result is the deplorable, humiliating situation in which Boston finds itself today, with prices that gouge the purse and service that cries to heaven. We are asked to pay seventy cents a pound for a form of linoleum called rump steak. We are taxed a dime for the privilege of being trampled upon in the Park street subway station and carried to our destination clinging to straps in cars shamefully overcrowded. The law prohibits the overcrowding of cattle cars, but not the Boston Elevated cars. Such is the listless, long-suffering spirit of modern Boston, the like of which it would be hard to find anywhere else in the world.

No wonder a desiccated historian is permitted without protest to go before the Bostonian Society and call the victims of the Boston Massacre—heroes of the early Revolutionary days—a pack of hoodlums and crown his tory muckraking by reviving the charge that Paul Revere was a common thief! It is only a question of time when these servile depths to which twentieth century Bostonians have fallen will tolerate abuse of Sam Adams and John Hancock. Somebody must be abused, and why not the old patriots instead of the new profiteers?

Yet the wily propagandists still harp on Prussianism abroad!

WHAT A DIFFERENCE WHEN IT'S THE HUSBAND WHO IS SICK!

Old man, after you had been ill at your home for a few days, you had time to think, didn't you, about the care your wife was giving you, and you are not half a man if it did not make you ashamed of the way you have been known to treat her when she was ill.

Unless her condition was very serious, did you ever place the alarm clock near your bed so that you could awaken at the right time to keep giving her medicine through the night?

Or did you stay awake listening to every move she made so that you would be sure to get anything she wanted to make her more comfortable, a drink of water or the pillow turned over?

She always watches you and is ready with the icebag for your aching head or the thousand and one things which go to make it quiet and restful for the one who is suffering—meaning you, this time.

Your usual way with her is to place the alarm clock within her reach, her medicine also at hand and then with a brief, "Anything you want call me" air which says plainer than words that you think there is nothing left to be done, you go to sleep with an untroubled conscience.

Next morning you give the children hurried instructions what to do for their mother, stand in the doorway and ask how she feels and rush off

The Double Standard Ulysses Had It Solomon Flaunted It Will Law End It?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1920.

A child must have its plaything, a puppy its bone and grown men their "problem" to keep them out of mischief.

For the moment prohibition is put aside, although there will be some gnawing on that bone later. Now to occupy men's minds there is suggested "the single standard of morals." The young and old women's Christian associations say it is just what the world needs.

After the prohibition miracle, anything might be written into the Constitution, even the Golden Rule, and a gentleman from the South may one day write the single standard amendment.

Ordinarily you would take into account what is called "human nature," the settled habits of hundreds of centuries.

But human nature and habit were both brushed aside in the case of prohibition, and it might be done again in suddenly inaugurating a single standard, to make men moral and pure, by law.

It must not be thought that the single standard idea is new.

In the fifth book of Homer's Odyssey, written about 800 years before the birth of Christ, the beautiful goddess Calypso complains that the gentlemen gods have one moral code for themselves, another for goddesses and nymphs. Calypso then had "Jove-bred Ulysses" all to herself in her cave on the island when Jupiter sent word that Ulysses be sent home to Penelope, patiently knitting and waiting. Angrily Calypso denounces the insatiate gods."

In those early days all that was expected of a man was that he should fight, swim, escape the clutches of the one-eyed monster. His wife was expected to supply the moral qualities.

Consider also the story of the Queen of Sheba and Solomon, all told in one short chapter.

She travels from her little kingdom on the southeast shore of the Red Sea all the way to Jerusalem, bringing camels loaded with jewelry and spices to behold Solomon and test his wisdom. When she realized the wonderful things that he did, owned and knew, she was so much impressed that "there was no more spirit in her."

She never held the double standard up against Solomon, and the Bible doesn't for that matter. It considers him a worthy son of David, although as you learn in first verse, eleventh chapter, first Book of Kings:

"King Solomon loved many strange women, together with the daughter Pharaoh, women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Sidonians and Hittites."

Also in the third verse of the same chapter it is said, "He had seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines."

There is what you might call a liberal interpretation of the double standard in his own favor. The Bible, as you plainly see, found nothing much to criticise in Solomon's double standard conduct except for the fact that:

"When Solomon was old his wives turned away his heart, after other gods."

It wasn't his double standard that injured Solomon's religious standing, but the fact that

"Solomon went after Ashtoreth, the goddess of the Sidonians, and after Milcom, the abomination of the Ammonites."

Hundreds of millions of human beings, generation after generation, for nineteen hundred years, have heard of Solomon's conduct without especially blaming him, except for his building high places "for all his strange wives, which burnt incense and sacrifice unto their gods."

How shocked Solomon would have been, how indignant we all should be now, if the Queen of Sheba, before unloading her camels and departing had said to Solomon, "Behold, I believe in a single standard of morals, what is good enough for you is good enough for me. I am hurrying back to Sheba, there to gather together for myself a couple of thousand young husbands, white, black and yellow, to match your female collection."

Had the Queen of Sheba talked in that way her name would probably have been cut out of the Bible and her reputation would have suffered.

But King Solomon could do all the things that the Bible narrates and still be handed down as the wisest man.

For half a million years a distinct moral difference has been established and recognized between men and women. It will take a powerful, well-written constitutional amendment to change it between now and next Christmas.

This does not mean, however, that it will never be changed, or that the single standard will never exist. It will come in time. And women will bring it about by their influence on children, ending polygamy, public and private, and other immoralities in the future, as in the past they have ended cannibalism and other abominations.
